WARIO LAND II

It's a lousy day for Wario—when he wakes up, he finds all of the treasure in the castle gone! Using our exclusive maps, you can join him on his trek to the Syrup Castle to recover his precious hoard. Get the details and learn about Wario's new zombie transformation skills on page 62.

Do you know your stunts from your shifts? Do you tweak or moguls or do they leave you feeling melancholy? You'll know exactly what we're talking about after you read up on our tips and strategies for the riders, boards, tricks and courses in Nintendo's 1997 Snowboarding, a cool title that's part racing, part freestyle and pure fun.

Ralph, Lutz and George are back and rampaging across the globe in Midway's revised arcade classic, completely updated and enhanced for the N64. Our monstrous review includes a culinary menu of helpful hints and other goodies in the game and warns you away from the junk food that leaves a sour taste in your mouth or undesirable smudges in your oversized stomach.

Does GoldenEye 007 have the golden touch? Will it win Best N64 Game of 1997? That depends on your vote in the Nintendo Power Awards. Read up on the nominees for Best Hero or Heroine, Most Innovative Game, and the controversial "More Annoying Than The Spice Girls" Award, then vote on your Player's Poll Card and mail it. You might win a t-shirt, a game, or score on N64 systems and game library!

PLAYER'S PULSE

This month, readers are sounding off on WCW Vs. NWO, DKR and Bomberman 64. They also have a thing or two to say about earning bonus options by finishing a game. Who's right? Let us know by sending us your two-cents worth of Siskul-and-Eberting via snail mail or e-mail!

Wrestle Mania

Whoa! I finally found the perfect wrestling game: WCW vs. NWO: World Tour. With the new grapple-and-counter system, THQ has resolved the stupid button mashing of WWF Royal Rumble and its clones. And there's no more waiting! If you are eliminated from Battle Royal, you can still play outside of the ring by dragging other wrestlers out from under the ropes. Even GoldenEye 007 seems pitiful compared to this game's multiplayer mode, especially the Battle Royal mode, which is total carnage. Add to that the high quality graphics and incredible number of moves, wrestlers and options, and WCW vs. NWO is easily the best wrestling game ever made.

game I have ever played. The graphics are great and the game play—is fantastic. However, there are too many parts where a guy's arm or something goes right through someone's body, and the game doesn't include the wrestlers' theme music. Besides that, it's great!

Diddy Kong Racing

I think Diddy Kong Racing is one of the best games ever to come out on the Nintendo 64. When I tell my friends about it, they have one response: Mario Kart 64. DKR is very different from Mario Kart. In DKR, you have three vehicles to choose from, new weapons and power-ups. And I love the new graphics system Rare used for the game. DKR delivers a world of racing mixed with a touch of adventure.

Patrick Santosa
Via the Internet

Diddy Kong Racing takes the best elements of the best games, mixes them together, and produces the most repulsive concoction I have ever seen. Just imagine trying to mix your favorite foods in a blender: steak, pizza, ice cream, Oreo cookies, broccoli, asparagus, apples, bananas, and a piece of sausage. Hit blend, then try telling someone it's the perfect mix. If I want flight, I'll take PilotWings 64. If I want racing, I'll buy Mario Kart 64 or Extreme-G. If I want action, I'll take Star Wars: Shadows of the Empire. If I want adventure, give me Zelda or Mario anytime. I'm hoping that, in the future, Rare won't spring surprises on us like this one.

Anthony James Lavrea
Via the Internet

Equally surprising is that you've listed "a piece of sausage" as one of your favorite foods! Dietary preferences aside, your post is well taken. Some gamers and racing purists agree that DKR somehow compromises racing along its 3D-plus tracks (by far, the highest number of tracks for any N64 racer) by requiring racers to seek out hidden keys, Gold Balls and Silver Coins. We think the combination successfully adds more depth to the genre. The way we see it, adding anything extra (adventure elements or, heck, even a piece of sausage to DKR isn't overkill—it's just icing on the cake.

Down with Pipsy

In Volume 104, you stated that Pipsy was the Best-driver in Diddy Kong Racing. I've got some news for you: Pipsy stinks! Her top speed is as slow as, if not slower than, a 300-year-old dog chasing a slug uphill. Therefore, your new year's resolution should be TO LEARN HOW TO DRIVE!!! Krunch and Bumper are the best (besides Drumstick, of course). At top speed, Krunch and Bumper eat small mammals and turtles, like Pipsy and TipUp, for breakfast.

Bob Race

Game Name • Diddy Kong Racing

Indeed, Krunch is the fastest of the eight regular Diddy Kong races. However, we ranked Pipay as the best driver because it's not speed alone that makes a good driver. Pipay's tight handling and quick acceleration makes her the favorite driver of many gamers, including many of the game testers here at NGA. Surely you're a pro if you can master Krunch, but the Krunch isn't second as speed to only Drumsack, T.T., the clock is another Krunch character who can leave Krunch in the dust. He's not only the fastest driver, but T.T.'s handling and acceleration are far superior to Drumsack's. To access T.T., switch to Time Trial in Tracks Mode. If you race an especially fast time in a track, you'll activate T.T.'s ghost for that course. Once you've beaten the ghost on all 20 regular tracks (you can ignore the battle arenas and Trophy Races), you'll be able to select T.T. as a driver. It's not an easy task, but, quite frankly, using Pipay will make the job considerably easier.

Stop Limiting My Fun!

I thought that if you buy something, you own it and all that it contains. Obviously, you do not think so. I don't know what reasons you have for limiting my fun, but they better be good. I own GoldenEye 007, so I should be able to play any level and be any character I want, regardless of how "far" I've gotten in the game. There should be an option for this; none of this "you have to beat certain things and go in order" stuff. I own the game. I discussed this with many of my friends, and some side with you, saying that it makes the game more fun.

Jason Krpan

Wintrop Harbor, NJ

You can't just skip to the good parts, Jason—that's like reading the last page of a book or skipping through the finale of a movie before you've found out the rest of the story. Gaming is meant to be an experience that builds upon itself, and, like anything in life, you learn as you go so you can apply your knowledge to move further. If GoldenEye allowed you to skip straight to the Cradle, Egyptian or Aster levels, you wouldn't have the spang Grassie and know-how that you would have developed had you played through the game in order (and instantly getting blasted into Swiss cheese because you don't know how to defend yourself doesn't sound very fun to us, Jason). In many games, you could score up to 999,999 points, but just because there's that chance, doesn't mean that the game should hand it to you on a platter. You own the game, and, while you may not be able to access the extras yet, you own the bonus options nonetheless. And we're confident you also own the ability to work your way up to them.

MOST WANTED

It's Not Whether You Win or Lose...

You know what stinks about today's games? There's way too much emphasis on beating the game and finding everything. It used to be that you never got a thing for finding all the items. Now, players expect to get a reward for finding everything, then they complain that they've done it all and proceed to sell their game. What I suggest is that players stop and take a look at what's around them in the game. Maybe, just maybe, these "no replay value" complaints will disappear.

Steven Reich
Janesville, WI

Da Bomb or a Dud?

Bombberman 64 is so much better than the original. You described it perfectly when you called it frantic fun. The Adventure Mode in the Super NES Bombberman was a flop, but the N64's adventure mode alone is reason enough to buy Bombberman 64—it's all about finding the custom parts and secret areas. But the love of Battle Mode is what really draws people into Bombberman 64.

David Faud
Via the Internet

Didn't we learn from Jurassic Park that just because we can, doesn't mean we should? The automatic way to make a classic game worthless is to make it 3-D. 3-D Tetris! That's too complicated. Some things should be left as they are—including Bombberman.

Jim Eskew
West Chester, OH

In and Out

In Volume 104, in the Bonus Issue's In and Out List, you

Made of Clay

Bombberman is a hidden character in Clay Fighter 63 1/2, but what about Elliot Houser? Like Hobo Cop, the 11-year-old from St. Paul, Minnesota didn't make it into Interplay's twisted tournament fighter, but he had his likeness molded into a clay sculpture like the ones that were digitized into the game. Elliot scored the grand prize in Volume 98's Player's Poll Contest and won a trip to Interplay in California, where his sculpture was being molded. He rounded off his weekend getaway with a day at Disneyland, but, being the gamer he is, Elliot's favorite part of the trip was seeing Interplay's programmers at work and then being able to test their gaming skills at the local arcade.

Putting himself in Interplay's hands, Elliot Houser had his likeness molded into a clay sculpture, like the ones used in Clay Fighter 63 1/2. listed Zelda 64 as "in" and Final Fantasy VII as "out." Get a clue: the games are obviously different types of games. I know Zelda 64 is going to be an awesome game, but it's an adventure. Final Fantasy VII is the king of RPGs for now, until FFVIII comes out, or, maybe even Earthbound 64. Zelda is the king of adventure games and you can't compare Zelda 64 to FFVII—it's like comparing Super Mario 64 to GoldenEye 007. I'm not bashing Nintendo. In fact, the N64 has got some really awesome games, including Super Mario 64, Turok: Dinosaur Hunter and GoldenEye 007, and I'm eagerly awaiting some future games including Zelda 64, Dracula 3-D and Hybrid Heaven III (it's anything like Metal Gear). Just don't bash other systems because they aren't your systems. Although 70% of PlayStation's games are horrible, it still has some good or even excellent games.

Richard Burns

WRITE AWAY RIGHT AWAY!

Yoshi's Story arrives this month WITHOUT Baby Mario. That's at least one thing the game has going for itself. Do you think Yoshi's Story has plenty of great and novel ideas to offer gaming, or is all the hype purely fiction? Should more side-scrollers enter the next generation?

SNOWBOARDING

© 1998 Nintendo. Lemur is a trademark of Lemur Productions.

It's an endless winter in Nintendo's 1080° Snowboarding! Our NP exclusive shows you how to bust out the best tricks in the game.

See, Hear, Feel.

1080° Snowboarding is the closest thing you'll find to boarding without risking frostbite. The game's crystal-clear graphics and spectacular sound effects are beyond anything seen in a skiing or snowboarding video game so far. And you can heighten the realism by plugging in a

Rumble Pak so you can feel your board chatter across slick ice, plow through deep powder, slam between towering moguls, bank fallen logs or slide along frozen railings. Whether you love to board or just dream of doing it someday, this is your endless winter.

Six Modes

1080° Snowboarding's six modes are different formats of freestyle and racing contests. Time Attack is a slalom course. Match Race and 2 Player Vs modes are both head-to-head competitions. Both Contest and Trick Attack modes are stunt challenges in which you earn points by performing tricks. If you're looking for a free ride session, you can sharpen your skills in Training mode's half pipe and free-ride park.

TIME ATTACK

TRICK ATTACK

CONTEST

TRAINING

MATCH RACE

Riders

All five riders have different strengths and weaknesses—study their statistics to plan your strategy. A rider with a high max speed is great for racing, while a character with good jumping skills and power will score high in the half pipe and Trick Attack.

KENSUKE KIMACHI

Kensuke doesn't have a specialty, but his balanced skills guarantee that he'll make a good showing in any racing or freestyle event. Pair him with a Scout board in the half pipe or a Tahoe on the race course.

RICKY WINTERBORN

Consider Ricky Winterborn a natural athlete who has the best technical and jumping skills in the game. Push his start skills to the limit by grabbing air on the biggest ramps and berms you can find.

Snowboards

Pick your ride—1080° Snowboarding features eight different boards, all with individual performance factors. If you're shooting for a winning run, consider your rider's strengths and weaknesses before you grab a board.

ROB HAYWOOD

American Rob Haywood has the speed, balance and technique to dominate most of 1080° Snowboarding's contests. But if you're looking for air in the half pipe, Rob's weak jumps won't earn him the high scores.

AKARI HAYAMI

Akari may not have much speed or power, but her outstanding balance and superior jumping skills make up for those shortcomings. She doesn't like to race, but she's always a top contender in freestyle events.

DION BLASTER

The U.K.'s Dion Blaster is the fastest boarder on the mountain, but the big rumor going around is that the guy also has the worst balance and jumping skills. The stable Tahoe boards are best for him.

TAHOE 151

The Tahoe 151 is ideal for racing or half pipe, but it doesn't have as much flex as the Tahoe 155.

MERLOT 147

The Merlot 147 is a solid intermediate board that's perfect for mastering tricks in the half pipe.

B-LINE 149

The B-Line 149 is almost identical to the Merlot 147, except it has slightly better edge control.

SCOUT 156

The Scout 156 has excellent acceleration, response and edge control. Try it on a glazed run.

TAHOE 155

The stable Tahoe 155 is the fastest and most responsive board in the game, but it could use more flex.

SCOUT LTD. 162

While the Scout Ltd. 162 isn't the fastest board, it does have the best flexibility of all.

MERLOT 143

The Merlot 143 is nearly identical to the Merlot 147, except it has slightly less response and flex.

B-LINE 154

The B-Line 154 is a solid performer with good acceleration and edge control—perfect for a glazed pipe.

TRICKS

Catch air with flair! If you don't want to go through your snowboarding life looking like a hucker—that's a lame poser who doesn't care how he or she lands—you'd better pay attention and study these grabs and spins. The moves listed on the charts below will win the big points and the high scores in 1000[®] Snowboarding's Contest and Trick

Attack modes. When you've mastered these mid-air moves, spend some time working on the timing so you don't bail or crash on the landing. Any good shredder will tell you that the longest spins and stalled grabs won't add up to diddly-squat if you can't stomp it when you touch back down on the ground.

Grab Tricks

Grab tricks are mid-air moves that involve grabbing your board with one or both hands. The trick to scoring big is to stall or hold the pose as long as possible before you land.

INDY	200 PTS	⊕+B	An Indy is a bent-leg grab with the riders' rear hands grip their boards between the bindings on the toe edge.
INDY NOSE BONE	250 PTS	⊕+B	This grab very similar to the Indy grab, except the snowboarders' legs are "boned" or perfectly straight.
MELANCHOLY	100 PTS	B	To do a Melancholy, riders reach behind their straight front legs and grab the heel edge between the bindings.
STIFFY	250 PTS	⊕+B	The riders' legs must remain perfectly straight during this board-grab. Get lots of air or you'll bail on the landing.
STALEFISH	250 PTS	⊕+B	A Stalefish is when the riders' rear hands grab the heel edge behind their rear legs while their rear legs remain straight.
MUTE GRAB	250 PTS	⊕+B	During a Mute Grab, riders grab the toe edge of the board with their front hands placed next to the front foot.
TAIL GRAB	200 PTS	⊕+B	A simple and fast move, the Tail Grab requires riders to grab the tails of their board with their rear hands.
TWEAK	300 PTS	⊕+B	In this move the boarders' front hands grab the heel edge of their boards and pull it directly in front of them.
METHOD	200 PTS	⊕+B	To do a Method, riders catch air and grab their boards' heel edge with their front hands and hold it at head level.
NOSE GRAB	200 PTS	⊕+B	A quick move, this is an airborne trick in which riders grab the front of their boards with their front hands.
SHIFTY	400 PTS	⊕+B	A Shifty is a big or jump where the riders rotate their upper and lower torsos in opposite directions.

INDY

Indy is a quick grab. Use them to earn easy points while expanding down the small bumps.

STIFFY

Grabs like Stiffies take time to set up—make sure you have enough air or you'll eat snow.

STALEFISH

The longer you hold a grab, the more points you'll earn. But don't bail on your landing.

SHIFTY

Shifty grabs are worth 400 points, but Rocky and Rob are the only riders who can do them.

Spin Tricks

Spin Tricks are easy to learn in 1080° Snowboarding. After you master your first spin trick, the 180 Air, add the extra move to do the next trick. Keep adding on the moves until you can bust out a 1080 Air—that's three complete rotations—without thinking about it.

180 AIR	100 PTS	A+R+O	This move turns you completely around in the air so you'll be riding in the opposite direction when you land.
360 AIR	200 PTS	A+R+U	A 360 turn is a complete circle. If you're riding forward in the half pipe, you'll land riding backward, or vice versa.
540 AIR	250 PTS	A+R+U+R+O	The 540 is a 360 turn followed by a 180. Riders with strong jumping skills can pull off this move in the half pipe.
720 AIR	300 PTS	A+R+U+R+U+B	This is two complete turns with a backward or "back" landing in the half pipe. Try learning this move on a jump.
900 AIR	350 PTS	A+R+U+R+U+B+R+O+Z	A 900 is two complete circles finished with a half curl. Get plenty of air if you want to do this on the half pipe.
1080 AIR	400 PTS	A+R+U+R+U+B+R+U+B+Z	This is three complete circles in the air. You'll spend so much time flying that you'll need a frequent flyer card.

Combos Are Your Key to a High Score

Holding a grab in the air is one way to gain points, but you can earn even more when you combine several grabs with spins and flips when you catch big air. As you explore the courses, find the jumps that will give you the most air, then try a combo on that spot during the next run. The most important thing to remember is that you must stomp—touch down without hailing—the landing so you can keep all the points you earned in the air.

Half Pipe vs. Free ride

When it comes to doing tricks, the Nintendo Power staff and Nintendo's 1080° Snowboarding testers were split on where to go to do their favorite stunts.

Just like real life, some players preferred to ride open terrain while others were content to bust out that air above the half pipe all day.

While nobody could agree on which was better, everyone agreed that 1080° is the best winter sports title so far on the N64.

COURSES

No matter which of the six modes you decide to play in 100% Snowboarding, you'll have to memorize every mogul and icy patch on the eight courses before you can take over the scoreboard. While eight courses might sound small, you'll spend hours seeking out the shortcuts, jumps and fastest routes down the mountain.

Air Make

Air Make is a massive jump inside a crowded arena. Of all eight stages in the game, this is the smallest place to ride, but Air Make has one of the biggest jumps where you can catch the most air and score big stunt combos.

Tuck to build your speed before the jump, then push off to get additional air so you can go for multiple spins and flips.

Air Make's nordic-style ski jump is one of the best big air venues for pulling off combo tricks. You'll find that you can pull off four or five moves before you have to straighten out and touch back down on the snow.

Half Pipe

If the half pipe in the Training mode were reproduced in real life, it would probably stretch for five miles. This long pipe is ideal for perfecting your tricks on the shorter Contest and Trick Attack arenas.

You'll ride the Half Pipe when you choose Training, Contest or Trick Attack modes. Training's half pipe is the longest, making it ideal for practice sessions.

Crystal Lake

Crystal Lake is the easiest course in the game. This run features a little bit of all the terrain from the other courses in the game, and it's an ideal primer for learning how to master riding through powder or jumping moguls.

There are two moguls near the starting line on the Crystal Lake course. Dodge them if you're racing, or hit them head-on for some serious air if you're trying to score mid-air spins and grabs.

The course narrows through these tight S-curves, but if you have a board with sharp edges, you won't eat the rock walls. Catch some big air as you blast down the chute at the end of the turns.

Crystal Peak

The top half of Crystal Peak is obscured by snow buries, but your view will be crystal clear by the time you're halfway down the course. This run has a few bare spots. You won't have a problem if you jump the exposed rocks.

You'll find it easier and faster to jump these rocky ledges instead of following the course through the twisting canyon. You won't have any problem keeping your balance on these short jumps.

Stay right to catch the tiny shortcut. The small canyon leads to a snowy run that bypasses the slick turn by the NE4 ice sculpture. Keep up your speed or you'll get bogged down in the deep powder.

There's another short run on the other side of this shack. To find it, jump off the ramp next to the building or plow through the powder until you can cut into the gap between the wood fence and rock wall.

Hit the wood fences to score stunt points, or dodge them if you're racing and want to rocket for a high-speed score.

This narrow mogul field is great for busting out huge air and tricks, but you'll want to avoid the bumps if you're racing for a title or against another rider. Stay in control or you'll fall and fail.

This flat section is identical to the bottom of the Crystal Lake run. Hit the ramps only if you're going for stunt points.

Golden Forest

Heavy snowfall has buried most of the Golden Forest in several feet of powder, which is ideal for carving turns through the gladed runs throughout this narrow course. Go for the trees if you're racing and looking for shortcuts.

Sliss across the top of these moguls if you're looking for air, but keep your speed up so you can blast through the thick powder when you hit the first gladed run on the left side of the course.

If you go left at this fork, you'll have to jump the huge tree trunks blown down across the course. The right path is wider and doesn't have any trees, but you'll lose time covering more ground.

As the course winds down the mountain, freestylers will want to hit this fallen log. Hop on it, then roll-side up the trunk and do a couple of spins and a grab as you jump off the end.

You can catch plenty of plant air off the berries in front of the glades, but plan your landing or you'll tumble from bark.

Mountain Village

Mountain Village is an endurance challenge that will destroy all but the best boarders. The key to winning here is to conserve your energy on the upper half of the course so you can go for broke on the moguls and jumps at the bottom.

Unlike the slick rocky ledges at the start of Crystal Peak, the heavy powder snow on top of the stone slabs at the start of this course will slow you down. Stick to the lower, twisting trail.

Start riders hunting for air will want to take a trip through the open canyons. You'll find a long ramp and snow-covered air where you blast out the open door on the other side of the building.

The serpentine tubes inside the ice caves might seem like a maze, but if you remember to stay right you'll always jump over the road, and if you go left you'll end up skating down the road itself.

If you take the jump over the sled, make sure you have enough speed to clear the enormous boulder on the other side.

Dragon Cave

With its frozen suspension bridges, blazing torches and dazzling ring of fire, the Dragon Cave doesn't look like any run you'd find on earth. Perhaps one day your grandchildren will ride runs like this on other planets.

One of the funkiest features in the Dragon Cave is this icy suspension bridge. You can even leap into the canyon below.

Racers and free-riders wanting variety will love this run's balance of tight chutes and tunnels coupled with broad staircases and wide-open flats.

Other places in the Dragon Cave include a fully-furnished cabin you can blast through and a frozen riding you can sink with your board and skid across.

Deadly Fall

Deadly Fall is a wide-open run which begins on a broad glacier and eventually winds down into tree-lined gullies. This run resembles the alpine terrain you'd find if you went to Whistler-Blackcomb, Canada, or Val d'Isère, France.

It's always sunny on top of Deadly Fall, even when you're racing in Expert Mode. Because this run is very broad, you'll find lots of small chutes to explore.

Deadly Fall's steep run begins on an open glacier, but you'll be dodging trees and boulders when you reach the bottom.

Warning: Construction Ahead

1080° Snowboarding was still in development when we went to press, so some features may change before the game arrives in stores. Stages like Crystal Lake and Crystal Peak were nearly complete, but we often boarded out of bounds on runs like the Dragon Cave and Deadly Fall.

QUEST 64

THE QUESTING BEAST INSIDE
EACH OF US YEARNS TO EXPLORE AND DISCOVER FANTASTIC NEW WORLDS. AS QUEST 64 NEARS
COMPLETION, NINTENDO POWER
GIVES YOU THE FIRST LOOK AT THAT WORLD.

From its first appearance at Shoshinkai two years ago, Quest 64 has tantalized epic gamers with 3-D images of fantasy and magic. The promise of an RPG that lives up to the potential of the N64 has been enough to command their attention. Now, Power takes you beyond the screen shots to the real thing—the game behind the promise.

Once Upon an island...

IN A TIME LONG AGO, the kingdoms of Ceftland waned over the Etale Book. When one kingdom eventually took the magic of home, ruin befell the land. It was called the Day of Grief, and only the efforts of a great wizard restored the balance. Now, a thousand years have passed and a daring thief has stolen the book from Montrode Monastery. To recover the book, a young apprentice magician with great potential, puts his wits to work. His quest will take him across the breadth of Ceftland, sailing on pirate ships and storming great fortresses. He'll track the thief through the Carole forest and wander in the trackless desert dunes. He'll visit cities and castles throughout the land, performing many tasks, such as collecting the four elemental orbs of power. And everywhere he goes he'll look for his lost father, Lord Bartholomew. To avoid a second Day of Grief, Jack must overcome all odds and bring to a close the final chapter of the Etale Book.

Have at You, Evil Scum!

Battle On, Jack

In days of yore, the most exciting part of most RPG battles was the animation of flashing enemies. Quest 64 will banish those days forever. When enemies appear, the viewpoint changes to a dramatic angle, but the action remains exactly where it began. At this point, Jack has several choices. He can move within a limited area, cast a magic spell, or do both. After his attack, Jack waits for the enemies to advance or attack. The entire battle is alive with motion, color, and spells flying about.

Earth, Water, Wind and Fire

Magic, as any two-bit wizard can tell you, derives from the powers of nature. When tapped, these powers draw energy from the four elemental forces of earth, water, wind and fire. Jack begins the game with a rudimentary understanding of this. Using his magic staff to direct his spells, he can cast minor enchantments at the enemies he encounters. Fortunately, those enemies at the outset of his journey have all the intelligence and strength of a boiled cabbage. Unfortunately for Jack, the situation goes rapidly downhill. His enemies become stronger and more threatening with every mile. If it weren't for the fact that he gains experience, and greater magic powers, as he defeats enemies,

Jack's magic menu consists of four colored diamonds, each representing one of the four elemental types of magic.

Strolling through the countryside, Jack knows that an attack can come from any side at any time.

When the monsters appear, they are at a distance from our hero, who can move toward or away from them.

Jack and his enemies each have board areas in which they can move. The individual areas exist within a larger battle area. The borders appear as blue and yellow octagons.

Quest 64

By defeating enemies, Jack can increase his level of magic power. When the four element tal diamonds appear, you can select one of them to boost to the next level.

After choosing one of the four elemental types of magic, you use the text menu to choose the individual spell.

Once he's selected the magic spell, Jack can cast it on his enemies from anywhere within the battle arena.

Jack wouldn't have much hope on his quest to retrieve the Elzile Book.

In battle, Jack selects one of the four elemental types of magic, then he selects a spell. The graphic magic menu consists of four colored diamonds representing the four elemental types of magic. When you select a type of magic, text pops up to give you further choices. Activating the spell is a simple matter of pushing the A button. In Quest 64, as in most RPGs, selecting a magic attack is the easy part. Knowing which one to choose is the tough part.

My, What Big Teeth

Oh, give me a horse, where the monsters all roam, and the freaks and the ghouls still ply. Yes, at the heart of every great epic is a monster to send chills down your spine, or better yet, hundreds of monsters to freeze your soul. Quest 64 lives up to that grand tradition and then some. Ranging from rabid rabbits to rascally rose bushes, the genetic diversity of critters in Quest 64 would make the Amazon rain forest look like a sterile petrie dish in comparison. Big monsters tower over Jack while little monsters hop around his ankles. And you'd better respect every size, shape, color and degree of nastiness in between in the other monsters you meet. But rather than talk about them, let's meet them in person.

The Dark Goblin lives in the forest of Carlisle.

Granny's bonnet and spectacles wouldn't disguise those wolves as Red Riding Hood or Jack. Like most of their kind, these Wolf Goats hunt in packs.

Great spear-wielding frogs are out to run your stroll through the forest.

These dancing Mad Gobs stroll Jack relentlessly while maintaining perfect balance.

Doing the Town

Chat up your Neighbors

Battles may be critical to epic gaming, but exploring towns, chatting with characters, solving puzzles and stocking up for the rigors ahead is just as important. Quest 64 has literally hundreds of characters, most of whom have something to say by way of text boxes. In our incomplete version of the game, the text is still in Japanese, but at press time THQ was busy at work translating it into English. Text boxes convey the story as well as crucial information that will lead Jack on his quest. You will be given clues and hints about where to go and what to do once you get there. You'll also use the text boxes to carry out basic business such as buying items or staying at an inn overnight. Talk may be cheap, but it's invaluable, as well.

Finders Keepers

One of the most important parts of any RPG is the search for hidden treasure. In Quest 64, a simple push of the A button commands Jack to examine his surroundings closely. If he discovers something, he acts on it automatically. For instance, the red treasure chests found in the castles often hold valuable items. Jack searches them, then opens them up to retrieve the goodies. Secrets, such as hidden doors, may be found in the walls. Even the earth contains secrets, such as the clouds of magic that spring up from the ground. If Jack steps into one of these mysterious wisps, he gains one level of increased magic power.

One good place to go is the local pub.

In the towns and castles there are people everywhere just braying with information.

Don't ignore the children; other information can come from unlikely places.

Here at the castle, a search of the wall behind the throne reveals a secret door into a cellar.

Jack searches the treasure chests for useful items.

This isn't swamp gas—it's raw magic that Jack taps to increase his powers.

Jack can walk or run, but riding horseback is even faster.

Quest 64

Here's a peek at some of the many places Jack will visit on his quest through Celtland.

Getting Around

Most of the time Jack quests on his own two feet. Imaginair made use of the analog Control Stick so that a slight pressure makes him walk while more pressure makes him jog or run. But Jack isn't always a pedestrian. When you find a horse, you might as well climb aboard and gallop off. Horses can be found in different locations in Celtland, rested and ready for powering heroes. You'll also find a ship in Quest 64, and not one of those tiny tubs that were no larger than your character as in the Dragon Warrior series. No, this is a serious, seagoing ship that you can explore, and which will take you to mysterious shores. As you travel, you'll often take roads and read signs, but not everything will be marked for your convenience. THQ hopes to include an on-screen map to help out.

Sight-Seeing in Celtland

Will wonders never cease? Part of the fun of playing a good RPG is the sense of exploration, the feeling that you are seeing wondrous things that you have never imagined. On this page, we have put together some of the sights of Celtland, but this is just a taste, and many marvels may still be added to the game. Below we've shown some of the highlights from our alpha version just to give you an idea of the scope of the game.

Waiting for the Quest to Begin

WITH THE SUCCESS OF WCW Vs. MWO: World Tour, THQ has learned that patience pays off, and they aren't pushing Imaginair to finish Quest 64 before its time. Still, we expect the finished game to be released this June as a 96 megabit hit. Many items and characters have yet to be added, such as Jack's two companions, but Quest 64 has already taken shape. It's a world where we will spend many hours of happy questing. Without a doubt, it will set the standard for 3-D epics. Flatlanders beware!

EAT, DRINK AND BE MONSTROUS!

RAMPAGE™

WORLD TOUR

© 1998 Midway Games Inc.

Say so long to King Kong and goodbye to Godzilla—here come George, Lizzy and Ralph, the fiercest and funniest monsters ever to tiptoe through Tokyo. Midway Games has updated the arcade classic, Rampage: World Tour, for the N64, and the result is a simple yet challenging romp through more than 131 stages of monsters, mayhem and finger-lickin' fun!

AN ARCADE CLASSIC RETURNS

The old saying goes, "If it's not broken, don't fix it," and, in fact, Rampage: World Tour didn't need much fixing to make the leap from the '80s to the '90s. Though the graphics and sound have been updated, the concept and game play remains essentially the same, and that's definitely a good thing. Dr. Eustas DeMonic, head of Scum Labs, has transformed you into a 50-foot mutant hulk with his twisted genetic experiments. Your sole purpose now is to seek out and destroy all Scum Labs across the globe, and heaven help anyone or anything that gets in your way. Hey, what do they expect? You're a monster!

This new version features graphics that are even better than the original's, but the main focus is still on creating as much havoc as you can.

EAT & DESTROY

There are 16 Scum Lab locations around the world, and, unfortunately for the general public, you don't know exactly where they all are. To your monstrous way of thinking, the only way to ensure that Scum Labs is destroyed is to demolish (or eat!) everything in your path, including buildings, cars, planes and, yes, even people!

TOIL & RUBBLE

Your goal in each stage is to punch, lick and jump your way across a specific city, munching and crunching as much as you can within the time limit. To get a "Totally Destroyed" rating, you must demolish all of the buildings completely.

Dr. Betty Veronica will keep track of your progress and tally up the damage you cause.

RALPH

When Dr. DeMoss presented him "a lot of growth potential" in his new job, Ralph didn't know the half of it. Now the lewky lab tech is a 50-foot, blue-furred werewolf with a particular liking for Texas barbecue (or was that "Texans barbecue"?). His favorite pastime is chasing after Army tanks, even though his fur is always getting caught in their treads.

BONUS POINTS

For whatever damage you rack up in each city (including units of property damaged, number of people eaten, vehicles trashed and so on), you'll receive a bonus at the end of the stage. If you tally up enough damage in a particular category, you may also receive a special bonus of 10,000 points.

GEORGE

George always knew he'd climb to the top of the Scum Labs corporation—he just thought he'd do it on the inside of the building, like everybody else. The fact that he's now a giant, rampaging ape has probably squashed his chances for a promotion. Well, maybe he'll just have to return Dr. DeMoss's "favor" and do a bit of squashing of his own.

WORLD TOUR

LIZZY

Times are a-changin' when Lizzy had a problem searching herself, but this one she couldn't no longer has a problem putting her best foot forward—and stomping on whatever or whoever gets in her way. Being a party girl, Lizzy tells her fans wonders for her wild confidence, but she may be over a bit overboard, don't you think?

You'll eventually smash your way across all seven continents, taking out famous landmarks and sampling the local citizens. If you find and punch a World Tour flag or billboard, you'll begin the next stage in a new country.

As you travel to new locales, collect special items like balloons and wreaths for bonus points.

DEMOLITION DERBY

Each bit of damage you cause is worth at least 100 points. The simplest way to demolish a building is to climb up its side, punching and kicking as you go. Kicking will rock a building and eventually blow out all the windows on a floor. Punching is more direct, but you'll smash the nearest window only. If a person appears at a window next to you, press Punch to pop him or her into your mouth. You'll get a boost to your health meter and 100 points. If you're on the ground, hold Down and press Punch for a pedestrian pick-me-up.

BREAKING GLASS

As you break windows, you'll also find energy-giving food, items worth 100 points or more, and items that will make you sick to your stomach or will somehow hurt you. The best way to find items is to break windows that are half open or are otherwise different from "normal" windows.

Good food and all items will increase your health or give you instant bonus points.

If you're desperate for an item, chances are better you'll find one behind a half-open window.

TAKE IT FROM THE TOP

The fastest way to demolish a building is to climb on top of it and punch the roof. (Hold Down and press Punch repeatedly.) You may miss out on items and people, but you'll be in a good position to take out aircraft, and you'll cause lots of damage in record time. After you've caused a certain amount of damage to a building, it will start to collapse on its own.

Use this technique to make up for time spent chasing vehicles or people.

To demolish this type of long, low building, just bounce on top of it or hang on to the side of it and punch.

OCCUPATIONAL HAZARDS

When a building collapses it will sometimes leave a hazard, like a fire, behind.

You may be a giant mutant beast, but you're not invulnerable. Though you won't have to worry about stubbing your toe on a city bus, bad items will make you sick or damage you, and there are other hazards to keep an eye on. Runaway fires, exposed electrical wires and poison gases are sometimes left behind after a building collapses, and they are all hazardous to your health. Falling into water will also damage you slightly. To clear a hazard, press the Jump Button to leap into the air and then press Jump repeatedly to glide for a short distance.

If you punch a candle and start a fire, jump before you're burned. Let the flames destroy the building.

Jumping on small bridges will sometimes open up a jumbo-sized pothole. Walk, don't stomp!

Punching signs can be an "enlightening" experience. (If you hang back a bit) when you punch, you may not be shocked.

EAT OR DE FEET?

Snacking on citizens is good for you, but you won't get any energy or points from kicking one. Fortunately, if you kick a person or one falls out a window and becomes "street pizza," you can still eat the mess before it dissolves. Delicious and nutritious!

SPECIAL ITEMS

As you smash windows, keep an eye out for "Powerball TVs" (TVs showing smiley faces) and other rare items to gain special powers temporarily. Press the Kick Button to activate a special power.

HOT LOOGIE

If a TV shows a face alternating with a wall of fire, punch it to collect the Hot Loogie power. You'll be able to spit flames.

DEATH BREATH

The Death Breath icon is a TV showing a smogging face. The Death Breath roar will destroy all the buildings and enemies on screen.

TIME

Punching the beer-glass icon will extend the available destruction time for the current city.

POWER

Grabbing the boxing glove, weight or dumb-bell will boost your strength, allowing you to smash a whole door with one punch.

SECURITY

Collect the teddy bear, doll or hunk icon to gain a Security bonus and temporary invincibility.

HEY, V.E.R.N.!

Each day the V.E.R.N. facility produces barrels of toxic waste. If you eat this waste, you'll be transformed into V.E.R.N. (Violent Enraged Radioactive Nemesis) until the end of the stage. V.E.R.N. possesses ultra-strength and can fly under his own power.

TWISTED METAL

While most of your attention will be focused on smashing buildings, you'll also have to contend with a lot of vehicles and other features. Most of the vehicles you'll find in the early stages will be civilian ones. Once the police and military get wind of you, however, you can expect them to call out the big guns, including some rather advanced robots and aircraft.

You're shot at from all sides, not only by vehicles, but by soldiers, police and armed citizens. Now we know for sure that the government has been lying lying lying!

DEFENDERS

You can't crush whole cities and sharp up people like so much pasta without expecting some resistance. Both the police and the military will turn out in force.

HELICOPTER

Police and military choppers will buzz you like flies. They'll often make strafing runs just beyond your reach. Jump at them or climb up buildings and swing them as they sweep by.

TANKS

After the first few steps, you can expect a whole column of tanks in nearly every city. You can punch or kick them, but it will take three blows to take one out completely.

MINI MECH

These nasty little robots pack a lot of firepower, and if you get too close, they'll fry you with flamethrowers. Sometimes it's better to just climb out of their line of fire.

SUPER MECH

It's possible to destroy a Super Mech, but it can absorb a lot of punishment before going down. Once you destroy its outer shell, you'll find a Mini Mech waiting for you inside!

BONUSES & SECRETS

Life isn't all carnage and chaos, so take the time to collect secret bonuses. For example, some cities have special sights or attractions. They won't be labeled and may look like part of the background, but if you punch them, you'll find Tourist Traps full of vacationers, tanned to the peak of perfection and ready for picking!

JUMBO JETS

Punch these jets to tear open their cargo bays. The planes will explode and crates will drop to the ground and break open. The items inside will likely be a stink.

BALLOONISTS

You'll sometimes see balloonists floating high above the skyscrapers. Every time you touch one, you'll receive a bonus. After you hit one a few times, he'll explode.

AIR CARGO

These planes carry cargo, too. You'll often find a cow, a sheep or a chicken in the crates. If you leave a chicken alone for a few seconds, it may lay an egg.

AIRSHIPS

Besides balloonists, you'll also see airships, flying saucers and other high-flying objects. If something is not shooting at you, it will probably give you bonus points.

THE BEATING GOES ON

Most of the Scum Labs are overseas, but even if you don't find the World Tour flags, you'll eventually visit other countries automatically. Besides the 131 normal stages, you'll find secret stages, like Suburbia and Udenworld, and bonus stages. In one bonus stage, you'll have to eat as many people as possible within a time limit.

As you uncover each Scum Lab, Dr. DeMoric will appear and show you which facilities you've destroyed so far.

While the secret stages are fictional places, really every other city you visit in the game is based after a real place. Some will even have their signature landmarks in the background.

Each player can configure his or her controller individually before the game begins.

Players can select any monsters they want in four different color schemes.

At the end of some stages, the creature who inflicted the most damage on the other mutants will receive a Buddy Bashing bonus!

Even when you're cooperating, it's easy (and so tempting) to "accidentally" hit your fellow monsters. In single-player, you'll have to compete against them to score bonus points.

MONSTROUS MULTIPLAYER

As fun as Rampage is for one person, it's even more entertaining as a two- or three-player challenge. Each player can choose any of the three monsters, and you can even have three of the same monster as play at once.

The monsters can cooperate or compete, and at the end of some

BUTTON-MASHING FUN!

In this age of textured polygons and 3-D environments, how does a spruce-based, side-scrolling button-masher rate with the jaded game guns at NP? In the weeks since Rampage arrived here, we've spent an insane amount of time playing it. Why? Sometimes you just want to pick up your controller and go straight to the good stuff—you know, no fussing with complicated controls, let's just play! On the other hand, though it's easy to learn and play, this game also demands strategy and quick reflexes. The not-so-subtle humor helps as well, from the creative use of barnyard animals to the tiny Elvis we spotted walking the streets of Vegas. Rampage rocks!

RUSH EXTREME RACING

Rush Wrap Up

San Francisco Rush takes the leadoff spot this month with the last in a long line of terrific codes. Some of these codes can be entered using the Control Stick, but we recommend the Control Pad. Most of these codes can be used at the same time. If a code doesn't work after several tries, turn your Control Deck off and then on before trying again. The City by the Bay won't be the same after you've carved up the highways and byways with these cutting edge codes!

Foggy Night

To race at night, first go to the Options screen and highlight the "Fog" option. While holding all four C Buttons, press Left or Right on the Control Pad or Stick until you see a new "Foggy Night" option.

Unlimited Time

To disable the race clock, first go to the Setup screen, hold Z and then press and hold bottom C and then top C. Release the C Buttons. While continuing to hold Z, press and hold top C and then bottom C.

Reverse Controls

Auto Abort Disable

On the Setup screen, press top C four times. This code disables the Auto Abort feature, which brings you back to the track automatically if you leave the track or get stuck somewhere.

Reappear in Place

Car into Mine

On the Car Select screen, press right C, right C, Z, bottom C, top C, Z, left C and left C. This will change the picture of your car into a picture of a mine. During a race, your car will appear as normal.

Random Names

This code will juggle around any default names and scores on the Records screen. On the Records screen, press L, R, L, R, L, R, L and R.

Change View

To change the camera perspective during a race, hold the L Button and press Up or Down.

DIDDY KONG RACING

Activate Drumstick

Reaching Dragon Forest is no picnic, and if you plan to continue to Wizpig's Planet, you might do well to add another driver to your team. To free Drumstick the Rooster from Wizpig's vile spells, first win all of the Trophy Races up through Dragon Forest. Now go back to Taj's meadow at the center of the island. Look for a frog with a red rooster's comb on its head. When you find it, run over it with your vehicle. Drumstick will revert back to his fine, feathered self, and he'll then be available on the Player Select screen.

Running over Drumstick may seem cruel, but it's the only way to save him.

Drumstick will be freed from Wizpig's spells. He's one of the fastest racers in the game.

BATTLE MANGA

Hidden Arenas

To access four hidden Battle Mode arenas, first highlight the Battle option on the title screen. As the Battle option flashes, press Start very rapidly until you hear a tone. You'll then have four extra arenas available: In the Cutler, Sea Sick, Blizzard Battle and Lost at Sea.

This code can be difficult to do. You must press Start very rapidly.

Hey! Which where you throw those things, will ya? Somebody could get hurt!

DUKE NUKEM 64

Secret Options

These codes will ensure that there's carnage and mayhem galore! To activate these codes, you must first activate the Cheats menu. Once that's done, enter any of the cheat codes on the title screen, not the Cheats menu screen. If a code is entered correctly, you'll hear a sound effect. Now highlight the Cheats option and press A to see the Cheats menu. If a cheat has been activated, you can highlight it and press A to turn it on or off. You can also pause your game at any time and access the Cheats menu to turn cheats on and off. Use the Control Pad, not the Control Stick, to enter these codes.

Cheats Menu

All Items

Press R, right C, Right, L, left C, Left, right C and Right to get all the items and weapons in the game. When you run out of ammo, you must reaccess the Cheats menu and turn this cheat on again to get more.

Nearly Inevitable

To become nearly invincible, activate the Cheats menu, press the R Button seven times, and then press Left. Even with this code activated, you'll lose a life if you're crushed or smashed.

No Monsters

This code will "turn off" all the monsters in the game. After the Cheats menu is activated, press L, left C, Left, R, right C, Right, Left and Left.

TOP GEAR RALLY

FIFA SOCCER 64

Special Options

We weren't sure if we were ever going to find any codes for Top Gear Rally, but our intrepid code hunters came through with these gems. The Rainbow Road and Texture codes can be used at any time during a race, and you can repeat them at any time to return your game to normal. These two codes can also be used together, but that could make your race really confining!

Change Point Job

On the Decal screen, hold L, R and left C, right C or tap C. As you hold, press Up and Down to lighten and darken the paint on your car. The color may differ, depending on which C Button you're pressing.

Rainbow Road

During a race, press Bottom C, Z, B, Up, Up and Right to give the track rainbow colors. Repeat the code to return things to normal.

Change Texture

Game Date

On the title screen, press and hold all four C Buttons to see the date Top Gear Rally was officially completed.

Easy (Cheesy?) Victories

Okay, we admit this is a cheesy way to win, but it works! Pause a match and access the Controller Select option. Move your Controller icon under the other team's flag. When you return to the game, dribble a few balls into your new team's goal to build up a big lead for your original squad. Switch back to your first team before the final whistle blows to claim the victory!

Move your Controller icon under the opposing team's flag.

You can take control of the opposing players and kick a few into their goal.

Extreme-G

Racing Programmers

To put the face of an Extreme-G programmer on your bike, first enter the name "apteam" and then enter one of the following names: "ash," "greg," "john," "shawn" or "justin." These are the last Extreme-G codes we have, but we would not be surprised if there are more out there somewhere. If you find anything, let us know!

First enter the name "apteam" and then one of the programmer names.

Take a look at your ride now. It ain't the Moses Line, but it's hot!

MORTAL KOMBAT MYTHOLOGIES

SUB-ZERO

Mortal Kodes

If you've had a chance to sample Mortal Kombat Mythologies, then you know darn well how difficult the game can be. These codes (they're special passwords, actually) should give you a fighting chance, at least, to finish the game. Once you enter a special password, you can then reenter the password screen and type in any level password you wish.

1,000 Lives

To start the game with 1,000 Lives, enter 6TTB8H as your password. If you can't finish the game with even this many lives, well...

10 Vitality Urns

To start the game with 10 Vitality Urns, enter NXCYSZ as your password. The 1,000 Lives and Vitality passwords can be used together.

Credits

If you'd like to view the end credits without wading through all the grueling combat, enter CRYDTS as your password.

If you have an awesome trick, password or code for our Classified Information files, drop us a line at the address at the right. For access to even more cool codes and tips, check out Nintendo's official web site at www.nintendo.com.

Madden Football 64

More Madden Madness

It's too bad that we didn't uncover these codes before football season was over, but for true fans, anytime is a good time for Madden 64! Only one Classic Team code can be used at a time, but the teams are available in all modes except Season play. As for the EA Stadium, it will be available in Exhibition mode only and cannot be saved to a Controller Pak.

Classic Teams

Select the Create Player option and name your player "SIXTIES," "SEVENTIES" or "EIGHTIES." Save your player and exit. A classic team from the '60s, '70s or '80s will now be on the Team Select screen.

Credits

Turn on or reset your Control Deck. As the "Electronic Arts" screen appears, press and hold L, R, and Z simultaneously to start the game's end credits rolling.

EA Stadium

This code will enable the EA Stadium in Sea Matero, California. In Season mode, select the Front office option and then the Create Player option. Enter "SAN MATEO" as the player name. Save and exit.

Acclaim has a hot hockey sim that will light the lamps of hardcore hockey fans everywhere. Skate to center ice and take a firsthand look at NHL Breakaway '98, a stat-packed game that's ready to rumble!

©1997 Acclaim. The NHL Shield and NHL Breakaway are trademarks of the National Hockey League. NHLPA and the NHLPA logo are trademarks of the NHLPA.

THE MOST STATS

While NHL Breakaway '98's stats and graphics team says NHLPA players and NHLPA sounds make this game a top-notch sports experience, it's the detailed statistics and league season that will keep hardcore hockey fans playing in front of their TVs. The game tracks everything you could imagine, even stats for lesser totals for categories like penalty minutes by short handed assists to game-tying goals. Season mode even lists the top 100 leaders by twenty different league categories, so you can see how you measure up against the best players in the NHL.

GET REAL

NHL Breakaway '98 has tons of features. You can play up to a level of realism that can't be found on other hockey video games. You'll play as the captain and lose your equipment. You'll hear the arena public address system announce player names or numbers whenever a goal is scored or someone heads for the penalty box. If you want a piece of the action, you can put yourself in the game—and you'll see your name on the back of your jersey communicate down the ice.

If you win games in Season mode, you'll earn Bonus Alerts that you can spend on hiring a new coach or a hot prospect.

If you lose your stick, you'll have to stop and pick it up.

COOL MODES

NHL BREAKAWAY '98

NINTENDO 64

If the name of the game is variety, NHL Breakaway '98 has plenty of it. Depending on how long you want to play, you can practice your passing and shooting or coach a team of NHL players in an exact simulation of the NHL's 22-game, 1997-98 season.

PRACTICE

If you dream of becoming a scoring leader, you'd better get in the practice time. Breakaway's Practice mode is a great way to dissect the opposition and find their weak spots without jeopardizing your winning record. Use this mode to determine how your team holds up when they're playing short-handed in a penalty-killing session or to see how they measure up when you net your goals.

PRACTICE SETUP

Play along in Practice mode by testing different hockey scenarios, including testing your team in playing with three or four players on the ice.

EXHIBITION

The Tampa Bay Lightning might be struggling, but can they hold their own against General's hockey team? Can Team USA defeat the NHL Western All-Stars? Exhibition mode lets you mix and match the most outrageous and far-fetched pairings you can imagine.

Whether you're creating an outlandish hockey team or recreating a match between traditional rivals, Exhibition mode lets you pick and play any NHL, International or All-Star team in a one-game duel.

Use Exhibition mode to second-guess the outcome of real life NHL hockey games. You can even play in a Controller Pick and customize each team's roster to reflect the trades made during the 1997-98 season.

SHOOT-OUT

Shoot-out is the quickest, if not the most exciting, game mode in NHL Breakaway '98. In a shoot-out, the top five shooters from each team go one-on-one against the opposing team's goalie. The winner is determined after ten shots. If you're playing in Exhibition or Season modes and you have Shoot-out selected as your overtime option, you'll want to spend some time sharpening your aim. Shoot-out mode is excellent practice for those go-reaching, sudden-death situations.

The top five shooters from each team go one-on-one with the goalie in Shoot-out mode. If the score is still tied after five shots, the players keep shooting until someone blasts the puck into the net.

Lack plays a big role getting the puck onto the goalie in a shoot-out, but sometimes you can take out the goaltender by skating in one direction while aiming for the opposite corner of the net.

SEASON

NHL Breakaway '98's Season mode is one of the best ways to win a hockey title. In addition to playing the entire 82-game 1995-96 NHL season, your team will earn bonus points that you can spend on hiring coaches and players or trying to rehabilitate your injured players.

Season mode tracks the stats for every player and team in the NHL.

Check the calendar to see who you'll be up against all the way until the top.

TEAM MANAGEMENT

Good team management is the key to a winning season, and the more games you win, the more bonus points you'll earn. Bonus points are just the money—you spend them to improve your team. The first thing you should do is avoid jobs hiring your coach and manage your team. The best coaches have special skills that enhance your team's overall performance. You can also spend points on an injured player in the Training Room. Depending on how many Bonus Points you're willing to gamble, you could have him or her return to a speedy, awe-inspiring recovery.

PLAY-OFFS

Play-off mode is a sixteen-team contest involving eight Eastern and eight Western Conference Teams. You can limit each match to a best of three, five or seven game matchups. Gamers can customize the finalist teams or replicate 1995-97 NHL play-offs.

Since it's basically always a lock in serious NHL Play-off series it's one night. NHL Breakaway allows gamers to save their progress on separate Controller Paks.

The default NHL Breakaway Play-off mode are the same powerhouses that battled for the Stanley Cup in 1997. You can rewrite history by customizing the play-off tree.

If you're looking for real play-off tension, you can change the Game Difficulty and Game Difficulty level to base on the specific Play Off History menu.

INTERNATIONAL PLAY-OFFS

While International Play-offs mode isn't designed to simulate the 1998 Nagano Winter Olympic Games, it's ideal for replicating Hockey World Cup action. This game mode is nearly identical to Play-off mode, except that there are eight teams. As in real life, Team USA and Team Canada are the powerhouses in this field, with balanced competition, and if you choose either team, you'll easily slide into the final rounds. Hot-shot gamers can test their skills by trying to take Team Germany all the way.

International Play-offs mode is designed exactly like Breakaway '98's Play-offs mode, except that you start with eight teams instead of sixteen. This mode is designed to simulate Hockey World Cup action.

Team USA and Team Canada are the most powerful teams in International Play-offs mode, if not the entire sport. One of these monster teams almost always ends up in the final round of competition.

THE TEAMS

NHL Breakaway '98 features 36 NHL, All-Star and International teams. Besides playing standard NHL and International matches, gamers can experiment with hypothetical matchups in Exhibition mode, like pairing powerful Team Canada against the 1997 Stanley Cup Champion Detroit Red Wings.

WINNING PLAYS

Wraparound shots—the NHL equivalent to the NCAA slam dunk—are difficult to pull off in Breakaway '98. Slip passes and one-timers offer the best scoring opportunities, especially if you set up a slap shot from the blue line. Hold the shoot button to get extra power behind your shot.

IT'S YOUR CALL

If you're looking to buy your first N64 Hockey game, you're probably wondering if NHL Breakaway '98 gives you more than Wayne Gretzky's 3-D Hockey or Olympic Hockey

Nagano '98. The answer depends on what you want in a hockey title. Breakaway's comprehensive stats and Season mode options are great for fans with a appetite for number crunching, but Gretzky and Olympic have bigger graphics and a huge reputation with arcade fans. The issue really melts down to a matter of personal preference—ask yourself if you want a great arcade-style game or a hardcore hockey simulation.

If you're not absolutely sure, your safest bet is to try all three before you shell out the cash.

Q U A K E™

A top-secret military project to develop a series of "Slipgates" is already well underway. These devices, once they're perfected, will have the ability to instantly transport troops across vast distances. If you're an enemy, countermeasures has his own plan for these mysterious portals. Quake's demonic army has already been overrunning a U.S. military base, using Slipgates to bridge our world with their own hellish dimension. Time to get it up, soldier! It's your duty to lead Operation Counterstrike, a one-man crusade to bring Quake down.

© 1997 id Software, Inc.

FEAR AND TREMBLING

Prepare yourselves! The horrors that await you in Midway's Quake are definitely more nightmarish than anything you encountered in Doom! But while the going may be brutal as you struggle to survive the game's 20+ stages, the darkly moody graphics are a step up from Doom 64, and the vivid sound effects definitely set the right tone. Sprite-based enemies have been banished in favor of polygon-based beasts, and you just haven't experienced Quake until you've played it with the Nintendo 64 Control Stick and Rumble Pak! Of course, no first-person shooter would be complete without a multiplayer mode, and Quake has got a solid one. While it's limited to only two players, you do get to stalk your opponent in seven different arenas. N64 Doom fans will not be disappointed.

QUAKE EQUIPMENT

While you'll begin the game with a shotgun and a battle-axe, not even the most savage of soldiers will last long with just these meager weapons. Luckily, there are plenty of rewards in the form of bonuses and firepower for those who are willing to search them out in every level.

ITEMS

Armor

Armor comes in three pieces. Green armor offers the least protection, 100 points, yellow is better, providing 150 points, and red is rare (and by far the best), offering 200 points of protection. Remember that armor absorbs only a third of the damage you receive.

Assorted Spoils

A Megahex health box will give you an additional 100 hit points, but for only a limited time. Biosuits also work for only a short while, but they'll allow you to breathe underwater and wade through slime without taking any damage. (They offer no protection in lava pools, though.) Backpacks, which you'll find next to certain fallen foes, contain either a couple of grenades or a few shotgun shells.

Special Powers

These three powers are very rare and, unfortunately, their effects don't last very long. The Quad Damage gives your attacks four times their usual power, the Ring of Shadows renders you almost completely invisible, and the Pentagon of Protection rewards you with invincibility.

Shotguns

You'll begin Quake with the Single-Barreled Shotgun, which barely has enough firepower to dispatch most of your foes. The Double-Barreled Shotgun is a definite improvement, but on the downside, it runs through the shells twice as fast. (The small boxes hold 20 shells; the larger ones hold 40.)

WEAPONS

Thunderbolt

The most powerful weapon in Quake, the Thunderbolt allows you to fry your foes with a stream of energy. Use it sparingly because the cells it uses are hard to come by. The small cells hold six charges, which last just over a second, while the large cells hold twice that number.

Launchers

The Grenade and Rocket Launchers share the same ammunition, and they're both excellent choices for taking out a bunch of baddies with a single shot. On the minus side, you can easily blow yourself up if you use these weapons improperly. A small crate holds five grenades, and a large crate contains 10.

Containers

While you can't budgie these boxes of radioactive waste, they're still good for a blast. They'll blow up if you hit them with any one of your weapons, taking out any unsuspecting huddle who might be standing nearby.

Nailguns

These bad boys come in two varieties, one with a double-barrel and an even bigger model with four cyclic barrels. Both are excellent for quickly mowing down foes—just don't expect your ammo to last for long. Crates come in 25- or 50-shell quantities.

SLIPGATE COMPLEX

It's time to beat back the small army that's overrun your military base and gain access to the Slipgate that's somewhere within its walls.

1 Cues to the Crate

If you can't find the first secret area in the game, you might want to reconsider whether you're ready for this monumental mission! It's really not very "secret." Just follow the stairs that flank along the bottom of the screen to find the crate of shells hiding in a cubbyhole.

2 A Quick Dip

Once you reach the outside area, hop into the water and look for an opening to the right. Follow the waterway through the wall to locate a Megacub that rests above some stairs. Don't worry about the locked door—you can open it only at the end of the level. If you keep following the waterway as it goes around a corner, you'll find an elevator that will lift you back to the level's beginning.

3 Screen Shots

After you've returned to the outside area, enter the large doorway and take out any foot-soldiers who confront you. Next, head to the right and blast the television monitor that's positioned in the pillar. It will activate an elevator that will take you up to the small ledge, where there's yet another television to target. Blasting the TV will reveal a corridor where a Quad Damage awaits.

4 Bridge Above

You may not see it at first, but there's a bridge above the area to left of the large entryway. To get to this higher ground (and beyond it, a Nailgun) look for a little elevator that's in plain sight.

5 Target Practice

When you get halfway across the path that's over the toxic pool, turn to your left and fire your weapon at the glowing switch that's imbedded in the wall. Now turn left again to see a secret room with a Double-Barreled Shotgun revealed.

6 Bump Buttons

When you reach the descending stone ramps, you'll notice a red button located on every landing. To gain access to the Slipgate, you must bump into each one of the three buttons, making them turn green.

7 Toxic Tunnel

At the bottom of the ramps, you'll see a big pillar on the right. Search behind it to find the blueprint, then quickly jump into the pool. Enter the passage just beneath where the big doorway sits on the surface and follow it to find a room full of bonuses. The circuit will lock if you swim fast.

8 Slipgate When you reach the very end of the level, the screen will prompt you to enter the Slipgate. Don't go in until you've collected all the items you can carry.

CASTLE OF THE DAMNED

NINTENDO 64

You'll face only the front line of Quake's forces in this level, but that doesn't mean that their onslaught won't be fast and ferocious.

1 Soggy Secrets

A good deal of this level is devoted to pathways that snake around pools of water, but the best soldiers won't be content to stay high and dry. If you're looking for secrets, dive into these shallows to find ammo, shortcuts, and hidden doors. Start off your search by hopping off the ledge and swimming to the right.

2 A Rock Slide

In an area to the stairs from the door that needs the Silver Key, you'll see a column containing a brick that's slightly askew. If you slide the stone back into place, it will open a door that leads to a Quid Damage. It's best to wait until you have the key to take advantage of this bonus.

3 Access Armor

At first glance this armor seems out of reach, but if you blast the glowing red switch on the far wall with a shotgun shell, stairways to the armor will appear.

4 Water Way

There's a hidden door just below the switch we mentioned above, but it won't open unless you approach it in the water. The Sligate inside will lead you back to dry land.

5 Walls Fall

This seemingly empty hall actually has two false walls, behind which Knights lie in wait. Carefully approach the first wall and then quickly back up when it begins to fall. Now you can deal with the Knights from a safe distance.

6 Key Clues

You won't be able to nab the Silver Key until you've hit the switch in the hall with the Knights. Once you've crossed the bridge to the key, look back. Below the bridge you'll see a box of nails. Don't bother jumping down for this crate unless you have a real need for ammunition.

7 Under Pressure

Once you've opened the door with the Silver Key, you'll enter a room with a pressure plate on the floor. Step on the plate and run a few feet to the right or left of the now sunken switch. Run into the Sligate once it appears to be teleported to a ledge with an angry Fiend below. Use the ledge as a sniper's nest to defeat the Fiend!

8 Explore More

Once you've defeated the Fiend, you'll encounter a few more enemies, but basically this level will be completed. You can leave through the large doorway that leads into darkness, but don't exit the level until you've collected all the ammo, weapons, and bonuses.

THE NEGROPOLES

The Negroopolis isn't only one of the creepier levels you'll encounter in Quake, it'll be the first real test of your stamina and fortitude.

1 Grab Grenades

Just as a Grenade Launcher spinning in the air at the start of this stage. Grab it—it will become your best friend. (It is the only weapon you'll get that destroys Zombies.)

2 Bonuses Below

After you contend with the Ogre in the cage, head right until you're standing on a bridge. Look down and behind you until you spot an ammo box. Hop down, deal with the Zombies, and grab the box. (Shoot the wall behind it to get even more ammo.) Now scour the rest of this lower area until you locate the lift that'll get you back on track.

3 In the Ring

Head back to the bridge area but continue going forward until you find the lift that takes you down a floor. There are loads of Zombies down there, so get ready with those grenades. When you see the key, grab it and go forward to the far wall. Once you're underwater, you'll find a hole in the wall where the Ring of Shadows is hidden.

4 Rush or Crush

There's a large door with a trap behind it back at the level's beginning. If you don't want to be crushed like bug, quickly shoot the switch and hurry into the newly opened hallway.

5 Stand Aside

Just beyond the Gold Key door lies a hallway that doesn't seem to lead anywhere. Walk down this cramped path staying as close as you can to the left wall. As you move forward, the front wall will open and a torpeda will fly by. Now hop in the hole that's opened in the floor.

6 Lofty Position

After wading through some Zombie-infested waters, you'll enter a large room where an Ogre will try to bomb you from above. Take him out with your Nailgun and then jump up the little steps to the ledge. Now press the switch and use your grenades to blast the Zombies down below.

7 Slip Up

Before leaving the room above, switch to a weapon besides your Grenade Launcher. Now open the door and defeat the Ogres on the overhead platforms. Grab the ammo and armor that were previously behind bars, and shoot the wall behind those bonuses. Employ the secret Sliggate to get up to the platforms.

8 Dead End?

The last room you'll enter doesn't seem to have an exit door, but look—there is a red switch on the wall. What's this? You press it and it appears that the roof is falling? Could it be lost? Of course not. This level brings much more fiendish finale.

Castle Keep

While the castle-like level is rather short and straightforward, you shouldn't try to rush through it or you'll likely be finished off by its traps.

1 Cliff Note

It's here you begin your attack by firing at any Fixed that may be running around on the Keep's upper terraces. (You'll see why later.) Now go swimming in the right side of the moat and search the cliff to find a secret space.

2 Wall to Wall

Enter the door on the Keep's right side and take out the Ogre standing on the mini-tower. Now jump from the nearest small wall to the one farther away, then make a leap from that wall to the tower.

3 Spotlights

After climbing back to the Keep's main entrance, you'll find a short hallway with lights shining down on the floor. Avoid walking into these beams of light or nails will rain down from above.

4 Left is Right

When you come to the Y-shaped, elevated walkway, go down the left fork first. Ultimately, which way you decide to go doesn't matter very much, but if you pick the right path first, you'll end up doing a little more legwork.

5 Dodge Darts

This room holds a pillar that shoots darts in four directions. That alone wouldn't be so bad, but Knights will also attack you from all sides. To avoid taking too much punishment, run from the doorway to the far left corner and take up a defensive position.

6 Backtrack

When you get to this elevated walkway, go past the first moving post and stop on the switch. Now turn around and head back to a newly-formed fissure. Jump down into this crevice and use the lift to bypass most of the ports.

7 Key Decision

Once you find the Silver Key, you must make a big decision: You can go open one door now or wait until you have both the Gold and Silver Keys and open two. It's best to wait.

8 Heads Up

When you're back at the Y-shaped walkway, proceed down the right path until you get to a dark room containing a small load of food and a single column. After heading the baddies, walk over to the column and stand underneath its lamp. Now just hit the lamp with your head by jumping up. You'll uncover a small secret area.

9 Secret Side

Enter the Slingshot from the back to be teleported onto an outside terrace. (Now you know why you destroyed that Fire Flinger.) Find the Quad Damage, run back to the same Slingshot you just exited, and prepare for a fight.

10 Quad-Wrangle

After entering the Slipgate, you'll reappear on a rising platform with the Golden Key within reach. Suddenly, you'll be face-to-face with a Shambler, a huge creature with sharp claws and the ability to fire electrical beams. Use the Quad Damage and Super Nailgun to finish him off.

11 Downer! With both keys in hand, unlock the Silver Key door and hit the switch behind it. Do an about-face and use the new lift to get to the Gold Key door. Enter the door and drop down the hole. Now turn around and shoot the wall. Well, well, armor! Too bad you couldn't reach it before!

THE DOORS TO CATHEDRAL

Prepare to be both pummeled and very puzzled! Even the first area in this stage is bit confusing, so we'll give you a hand by suggesting that you step on the switch in front of the starting point.

1 Deduction

This room has a secret door hidden on the far wall, but you won't find the switch that unlocks it unless you look up. Shoot the switch, then take the secret lift up to a pathway of ducts. Step out onto the ducts, then look left and down. If you hop to this ledge, you'll nab a Quad Damage.

2 Silver Aho

So you want the Silver Key? From the room mentioned above, hit the low switch and turn to the right. Run forward until you hit another switch. Don't turn around—just back up into a hole that will drop you down a soot. Now back into another switch and run forward down the stairs. Next, run down the hall and turn right. An Ogre will appear—it's crucial that you finish him first. When he's fallen, a door will open in the right wall. Dive into the doorway. You'll be practically groping the key!

3 Go Down Again

After you collect the key, pass up the Slipgate that's off to the side. Instead, leap over the beam and scurry down the stairs. In the hall with the spiked wall, you'll gain access to a secret Slipgate!

4 Creep or Leap

Back at the stage's start, you'll have to get past a very dangerous pit to get closer to the Silver Key door. To get across, either tiptoe along or take a running leap off the beam before it turns left.

5 Rain of Pain

Now you'll enter a hall with a button on one of its walls. Bump into the button and turn around to see Zombies rain down on the other side of the room. Since you forgot your umbrella, just hit 'em with grenades. Once they're dust, cross the new bridge and enter the door. Hit the switch inside and take note of the results.

8 Step to It

After coming back across the bridge, you should see a Sliggie where a door once was. Shoot the symbol that's glowing on a post and then turn toward the Sliggie. Go down the secret stairway and spin around. Before you will be another Sliggie that leads to more bonuses.

1 Pest!

When you step on the switch shown below, you'll see a Shambler standing in a doorway with his back turned. Grab the armor behind him (this will make him mad), and back up fast while firing a weapon.

THE HOUSE OF CHTHON

Now for some bad news and some good news... First we'll give you the good news: There's only one enemy to defeat in this level. Now the bad news: Your weapons are totally useless.

1 Road to Ruin

Warning! Read this and the following section only if you don't like surprises! You'll start with a strange object directly in front of you. (This is a Rune that you need to collect to complete Quake.) When you grab it, Chthon will rise out of the lava pool to defend his prize. Run as fast as you can to the far side of the pool and take the lift up. Now read the next section for a winning strategy.

2 Watts Up?

There are three pressure plates on the elevated path that runs around the pool's perimeter. The ones on the sides lower posts down to Chthon's level, and the other one sends an electrical charge between them. Run clockwise around the path (make sure you run over the plates!) pressing the middle plate last to zap Chthon with some major wattage. You'll have to run the circuit up to three times.

AFTER SHOCKS

You may have just given Chthon the last shock of his life, but believe us, you have barely begun to scratch Quake's surface. There are still loads of levels to come, including a few hard-to-find secret stages. We'll be bringing you more info on how to find those hidden levels in the future, but let's just say for now that you might want to scour every inch of the Necropolis. And hey, before we forget, try to see if you can get your foes to fight each other!

IN VOLUME 103 WE SHOWED YOU THE OPENING PAGES OF THE GAME—NOW YOU'LL LEARN THE SECRETS AND STRATEGIES FOR GETTING THROUGH THE FIRST OF THE FOUR LEVELS IN STORYBOOK PAGES 3 THROUGH 4. IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR A HIGH SCORE IN STORYBOOK OR TRIAL MODES, HUNT FOR COLLECTING ALL 30 MELONS HIDDEN THROUGHOUT EACH STAGE. READ UP AND GET THE FULL STORY ON HOW TO FIND THESE PRIZED FRUITS.

Compared to Pages 1 and 2, the first level on Page 3 gets tough in a hurry. The biggest danger here isn't the bees or Shy Guys—it's the risk of falling below the clouds. You'll survive if you plan your climbing routes and look before you leap.

TURN THE WORMS

The Red and Blue worms will fly right off the page unless you learn how to control them. Hop on the backs of the worms to make them turn. Your ride ends when you reach the clouds at the top of the stage.

THE GREEN DRAGON

The Green Dragon will give you a ride past six melons, but aim your tongue carefully or you'll end up swallowing the other fruits carried by the flying Sky Guys instead.

CLOUD POUNDING

You'll earn up to twenty coins and a Special Heart if you pound all the clouds here. The tough part is dodging the buzzing bees. If you get stung, drop down and eat the Power Flowers growing next to Peachy.

MINIGAME

You'll earn five melons if you feast the Sky Guys flying above these clouds. Use your eggs to hit the high fliers, then finish off the rest with your tongue.

CLOUD N. CANDY

Use your tongue to quickly eat up Cloud N. Candy before she has a chance to pound you on your head.

INVISO

Watch closely and you'll spot Inviso's hiding places. Use your eggs to knock out this cloaking creep.

CLOUDJIN

Avoid the spiked balls rolling across the floating platforms and throw your eggs at Cloudjin's ugly mug.

00N BONGO

Take aim at Don Bongo's legs and hit him three times. Use your tongue to grab the falling pots and peas.

A RACE TO THE TOP

Hit the D-Jay Switch, then hop along the clouds to collect the melons. To save time, don't grab the Special Heart until you've eaten all the melons.

PAGE 4

Believe it or not, Page 4's Jungle Hut is one of the easiest stages to collect all thirty melons. There are six huts you'll need to explore to find the melons, but the biggest trick is knowing exactly what to do to uncover all of them.

A BLAST THE BLOCKS

Most of the melons in this hut are inside stone blocks. Eat the Shy Guys and throw the eggs to break the blocks. You'll find another reason when you collect the case.

10 F

E START A COIN COLLECTION

You won't find all of the hidden melons in this hut until you find and collect the gold coins. To save yourself time, frustration and flower petals, eliminate the pecky Gaboons before you hop around and gather up the goods.

C WALK THE PLANKS

You can't hurt the Chomps pacing the planks. The best way to get past them is to avoid the beasts or grab a Heart Fruit.

NO MINIGAMES!

That's right, dino-pal, there's no minigame in this level. That means you won't find all the melons until you explore all six huts in each corner of this jungle level.

F A RACE TO GET THE MELONS

After you stomp on the Mystery Switch, you'll have to race through the spider webs to gather all the melons in this hut.

THE TALLER THEY ARE...

The Shy Guys on stilts are impossible to defeat unless you hit them in the back with eggs or stomp their heads. Since some of these towering troublemakers are working on platforms above bottomless pits, your safest and best weapons are your trusty eggs.

E WALK QUIETLY

There are two hives inside this hut, and the buzzing bees will trap you if you make too much noise. The trick is to walk slowly and quietly beneath the hives.

Lots of jellyfish are one of three underwater adventures you'll find in Yoshi's Story. If you're not trying to collect every melon on the page, you'll find that this level isn't overly difficult—if you can dodge the jellyfish.

RELEASE THE FIRST WARP

The First Ms. Warp is hidden inside the Mystery Bubble at the start of Lots of Jellyfish. Get the Shy Guy and use the egg to break open the bubble and release Ms. Warp.

STARTMAN-O-WARS

Unlike the blue jellyfish that swim in one piece, the red ones will slowly chase you through the stage. You can't defeat these sluggish predators, but if you keep moving, they'll never have a chance to catch up to you.

10 C*SNORKEL SNAKE

Princess is the best defense against the invincible Snorkel Snake. Wait as its circles, then escape through the gap between the head and tail.

MINIGAME

60 H

This is a long jump minigame; the further you jump, the more medals you'll earn. You can start with extra lives if you lose all the orange blocks, but the key to winning it all is to hop across the backs of the blue waterlilies and waterlilies.

HOMING TORPEDOES

The submarine Shy Guys in this level are equipped with homing torpedoes. The so torpedoes are fast, but they can't turn as well as you can, so try swimming behind rocks or sharp corners to make them miss you.

A swarm of flying Shy Guys will make one pass above you before flying off into the blue fabric skies. Use your tongue to grab the two Shy Guys carrying melons in their clothes.

Mecha Castle is one of the toughest pages in Yoshi's Story, but that's because this is the last stage you'll need to complete before you confront Baby Bowser and fight it out for the Super Happy Tree.

FLOOR BLADES

The blue blades are stationary, but the red blades will chase you. Jump over the blades when they sink into the floor.

A BIG CRUSH ON YOU

You can throw eggs at the Black Sky Guys, but the best trick is to wait for them to drop their blocks, then run underneath them as they pick them up.

MINIGAME

MAKE A RUN FOR IT

After you hit the Mystery Switch, run right across the gears and climb the Surprise Bells. If you're running out of time, hit the Delay Switch above the gears with an egg.

DON'T GET PINCHED

If you stop on a moving sprocket, your Yoshi will be yanked into the gear teeth. Unlike other stages in the game, the traps here will instantly take your Yoshi, not Smiley Meter (lower petals).

HORIZONTAL CUT

Watch out! Blade tips the walls of Mecha Castle. As the knives will jump out at you. Jump up sharp hazards as they retract into the wall.

POUNDING PISTONS

All of the pistons in Mecha Castle have a rhythmic pattern. If you wait and watch, you'll know when the pistons will smash together and you can leap between them as they pull apart.

ROCK AND ROLLERS

Falling off Mecha Castle's Rollers won't result in fatal consequences every time—sometimes you'll discover hidden Fruit at the bottom. Remember that you can push down or up on the Control Stick to see the terrain below and above you.

This minigame is a race against time. You won't take any damage if you're Super Happy during the race.

BOOM BABY BOWSER

Compared to the other Mario and Yoshi games, Baby Bowser is easy to defeat in Yoshi's Story. When the battle starts, pick up the falling Bob-ombs and throw them at the spikes on the ceiling until they hit Bowser three times. If you're running low on life, take a bite out of Yoshi from the Super Happy Tree. You'll be able to throw three more Bob-ombs after you throw three more Bob-ombs

GO FOR THE MELONS TO GET THE HIGHEST SCORES

Yoshi's Story seems like an easy game until you try to collect all 30 melons in every course. In order to find all the melons, you'll have to get perfect scores in the minigames and sniff out the remaining hidden fruit. The tricky part is using your tongue to carefully eat the melons and not the other kinds of fruit.

Yoshi's Score
Fruit	1100
Enemies	200
Coins	12
Meat	100
Melons	2000
Yoshi	600
TOTAL SCORE: 4906
HIGHEST SCORE: 4906

There are 30 melons hidden in each stage of the game. Some melons are out in the open, and others you'll have to sniff out. Perfect scores in the minigames, too, eat the remaining melons by following Yoshi's nose. You don't have to stop to sniff for melons—save time by holding down the B Button as you run through every nook and cranny in a stage.

NBA IN THE ZONE '98

TALK ABOUT A FULL COURT PRESS!

Konami is bringing five-on-five basketball action to the N64 with NBA In The Zone '98.

The action is fast and furious, so you'd better bring your good shoes!

© 1998 Konami. The NBA and individual NBA Team Identifications used on this product are trademarks, copyrighted designs and other forms of intellectual property of NBA Properties, Inc. and the respective member Teams and may not be used, in whole or in part, without the prior written consent of NBA Properties, Inc. © 1998 NBA Properties, Inc. All rights reserved.

THE REAL DEAL

NBA in the Zone '98 is a breath of fresh air for the sports game scene, not just because there have been no basketball games for the N64 since NBA Hangtime, but also because the game steers away from fantasy play and focuses on real-world player performance and real-world rules. Up to four players can participate in the five-on-five action that includes all 29 NBA teams, actual pro players programmed with their '96-'97 season stats, offensive and defensive fouls, backcourt violations and more.

SEASON STATS

There are four play modes to choose from, including Exhibition, Play-offs, All-Star and Season. If you choose the Season mode, the computer will automatically track your players' performances in key areas like points per game, field goal percentage, rebounds, assists and fouls. You'll be able to compare a player's current stats with his previous year's performance, and the computer will even calculate averages for your entire squad in 13 performance categories.

JUST A BIT OF FANTASY

You won't see a 40-foot jam with a flaming ball around here, but if you want to inject just a bit of fantasy into your game, then you can take advantage of the Edit option. The Edit option allows you to tweak existing players or create a new one. You can set a player's height (up to 7' 11"), weight (up to a hefty 349 pounds) and skill level in nine different areas. Once a custom player is saved to a Controller Pak, he can be downloaded and used on any team in any play mode.

TRADING

If that's not enough, the Trade option lets you swap any players you wish between two teams. If you're looking for a point guard, for example, you can shop around with the best teams in the league to see who would fit the bill. There's no limit to the number of players you can trade, and you can even use this feature in the Season mode. In the Season mode, however, you'll be limited to trading players with the team you're facing on that particular day.

RULES OF THE GAME

The Rules option allows you to dial up or turn down the realism to suit your tastes. You can set the number of fouls it takes for a player to be ejected or turn off the option completely, as well as turn on and off a host of violations and penalty situations. We actually recommend turning off the Out of Bounds option until you get used to the court boundaries; otherwise, you'll probably be hearing the ref's whistle every couple of minutes!

COACHING

With five players per team, tactics and coaching will be more important than you might think at first. Just driving to the hoop for a jam won't get you very far, and ball handling will be critical to scoring consistently. Players will tire at different rates, play differently depending on the situation and even play in "streaks" like their real-life counterparts. We've outlined strategic suggestions for each team on the following pages, but the rest will be up to you.

ATLANTA HAWKS

ATLANTA HAWKS

SG	11. DARRYL ANGELO
PF	13. DARRYL GASKINS

PT	11. DIMITRI YATKOS

If rebounding is your game, then you could do worse than the Atlanta Hawks. Dikembe Mutombo is an average of 11.6 rebounds per game last year, so he'll really come close to matching for you in any play mode. With 1,438 and 1,445 points respectively for the '96-'97 season, Chauncey Loftis and Steve Smith should also put in lots of productive play.

CHICAGO BULLS

If you think that these Michael Jordan-less Bulls are somehow tamer than their real-life counterparts, think again. Though Dennis Rodman can't hit 3 pointers with the accuracy he shows in some other 3-ball games, he's still a rebounding demon. Trust Scottie Pippen (1,836 points last season) to produce consistently, whether it's from the paint or somewhere downtown.

After a few disappointing seasons, the Pistons are once again a force to be reckoned with, achieving a 54-28 record last year in the talent-heavy Central Division. Though you should build much of your game plan around the NBA's Mr. Nice Guy, Grant Hill, don't overlook the backcourt support of such stalwarts as Lindsey Hunter and the venerable Jay Dawkins.

STARTING LINEUPS
CHARLOTTE HORNETS
PG	11. GLEN RICE
SG	11. GLEN RICE
PF	11. GLEN RICE
C	11. GLEN RICE
PT	11. GLEN RICE

Glen Rice and Wade Dixon are unquestionable Hornets' headliners, but the true strength of this team is its terrific depth. Dell Curry, winner of the '93-'94 Sixth Man Award, is the cornerstone of your bench, but don't ignore quality vets like Matt Geiger, a good backup for Dixon. Use your resources wisely and you may find yourself with a play-off berth.

As need be, the focus of your virtual Cavs will be their new leader, Shawn Kemp. Despite Kemp's dispute with Seattle Sonics' management last year, his overall performance didn't suffer much, and you can expect him to perform as well as or even better than advertised on his stat sheet. When substiting, be sure to give Brown Knight and Derek Anderson some game time.

INDIANA PACERS

INDIANA PACERS

Unless you're on a par with new head coach Larry Bird, don't expect anything very spectacular from this squad. If you treat the Pacer like a four-upper, shoring up their offense and patching the holes in their inexperienced bench with a few smart trades (at least), there are no good subs for Reggie Miller or Chris Mullin, so you can put in a respectable season.

MILWAUKEE BUCKS

STARTING LINEUPS

MILWAUKEE BUCKS

Despite the fact that Glenn Robinson, Roy Allen and Terrell Brandon together scored a total of 4,288 points last year, the Bucks were second-to-last in the Central Division. The stat goes to show that a good starting offense is not everything. As with the Pacers, you should make some trades. Look for some offensive backup, but more important, look for a couple of good lockers and rebounders.

TORONTO RAPTORS

STARTING LINEUPS

TORONTO RAPTORS

The Raptors ended their rookie season on the Central Division basement, and despite some pretty good individual stats, they may have trouble finding their way out of the dark. Keep the roster rotating throughout a game to keep everyone fresh. When subbing, swap John Wallace for Marcus Camby, and use Carlos Rogers, Reggie Slater and Popeye Jones as the primary backups for other starters.

BOSTON CELTICS

STARTING LINEUPS

BOSTON CELTICS

The Celtics marked their 50th NBA season not with cheers but with tears. They missed a record 471 games due to injuries. So, it's no surprise they managed no better than 15-67 last year. Luckily for you, some new blood should help them perform more like the Celtics of old. Though he's a rookie, Ron Mercer should provide good support for Antoine Walker, and if you need another starting guard, give Chauncey Billups a shot.

MIAMI HEAT

STARTING LINEUPS

MIAMI HEAT

The Heat lived up to their name last year, capturing the Atlantic Division by a comfortable margin, and they should have no problem repeating that performance. This team has advantages that most don't: a great starting lineup and a deep bench. Dan Marjano and Eric Murdock can provide backup for Tim Hardaway and Voshon Leonard, and, as we've seen in real Ho, Isaac Austin (last year's Most Improved Player) can fill Alonzo Mourning's shoes quite well.

NEW JERSEY NETS

STARTING LINEUPS

NEW JERSEY NETS

The first thing you might want to do with the Nets is to remove Chris Biringo from the starting lineup and put Kerry Kittles in as a third guard to help in the backcourt. Having two forwards and three guards is an unusual lineup, but it works, and it gives the team lots of scoring power up front. With this lineup, you can try to build a commanding lead in the first half and then play a insurance game in the second.

NEW YORK KNICKS

STARTING LINEUPS

NEW YORK KNICKS

The Knicks were need in last year's Conference Semifinals against Charlotte, mainly because of the suspension of key players in Games 6 and 7, including Patrick Ewing. Given a chance, this superb team would have a great shot at your virtual NBA championship. Little coaching will be needed, just be sure to rotate quality subs like Chris Chiles, John Starks, Buck Williams and Chris Mills through the lineup and you'll be fine.

In one year, the Magic endured the loss of Shaquille O'Neal, a mid-season coaching change and a host of injuries, and they still made the play-offs. We don't know if the virtual Magic will have the same spirit, but if you need a spark in the middle of a game, put Darrel Armstrong in to the action. Together with Magic leader Penny Hardaway, he'll help propel the team into the postseason.

The key to success with the Wizards is ball handling. With Georgetown's Murren's height and Chris Webber's and Juwan Howard's speed, you can keep the ball moving and your opponents off balance. Opposing players will be hard pressed to predict whether it will be Webber, Howard or point guard Rod Strickland who will take the shot. If you keep your players moving, you'll have lots of offensive opportunities.

Despite looking worse than the Warriors on paper, the Clippers finished better in the '96-'97 season with a 30-46 record. This does not mean, however, that a season with this squad will be easy. Take a leaf from the Clippers' real-life game plan and substitute a lot, and we mean a lot. None of your players are standouts, but if you keep them fresh, they'll do pretty well for you right off the bench.

Allen Iverson and Jerry Stackhouse are your only big scorers, and they need the support of a good bench. Unfortunately, you don't have one. Jim Jackson is strong in the point guard position, allowing Iverson to concentrate on shooting. The big question is how to use your best substitute guard, Mark Davis. Should he sub for Jackson to support Iverson or for Iverson himself?

With a 39-52 record last year, the Warriors didn't finish as badly as some other teams, but it will still take a lot of work and trading to lift them up from the bottom of the Pacific Division heap. Latrell Sprewell may be suspended in real life, but you can keep his virtual self in the starting lineup. You'll need to field two starting forwards and one starting guard, but Joe Smith can stay in his slot.

The Lakers fared much better last year than their cross-town rivals, the Clippers, and finished just one game back of the division-winning Seattle Sonics. Your five starters each rated 400 or better in field goals and have a collective average age of over 18 years per game, so a playoff berth is nearly assured. For variety, you might put a second guard, perhaps Kobe Bryant, in place of one of your three starting forwards.

The Suns climbed out of an early 0-8 hole to finish 40-42 last year, largely due to good coaching and wise trading. Now that the team has a rebuilt lineup, you can focus on tactics. Jason Kidd and 10-year veteran Kevin Johnson will provide quick ball handling, leaving Cliff Robinson, Antonio McDyess and Rex Chapman free to punch through your opponent's defense to accept passes and take shots.

You'll start your virtual '97-'98 season with a lineup that was revamped just last year. The squad should give you a solid season without major worries. Rashod Wallace will do well for you as your starting power forward, but you should also give Jerome O'Neal a chance in that spot, perhaps every third game. If Brian Grant doesn't live up to your expectations after a few games, put him on the bench and make O'Neal a regular starter.

Your first order of business as coach will be to adjust the starting lineup. Bring up either Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf or Terry Dehere to replace Bobby Hurley, and then switch either Dwyer Saint-Jean or Corliss Williamson with Billy Owens. Owens is actually quite versatile, and he'll function well as one of your top substitutes. The aim here is to provide support for Mitch Richmond, one of the top scorers in the NBA.

If Jim Mullen isn't earning his salary, rotate Sam Perkins or Jerome Kersey into his starting spot and work your tactics around these forwards. David Wingate and Duke Ellis are more than capable subs for Henry Hawens and Gary Payton, and they'll likely hit lots of 3-pointers when they're fresh off the bench. If you want a challenge, then the Mavs are the squad for you. They went through a complete overhaul last season, and the current roster is still largely untested as a team. Erik Stroudler, an undrafted free agent, will be the Mavs' key player, should take a starting spot half of the time, sweeping a space on the bench with Hubert Davis. With all the roster shuffling last season, here's another case of a team building a record and a reputation from the ground up this season. Though they don't have any stats to show, you can put your trust in starting guard Bobby Jackson and reserve center Tony Battie (a very promising first-round draft pick). Peter Dinkov, Tony Massenburg and Brian Edwards will provide good backup if you need to speak some sense, bring in the subnear the end of the first or second quarter.

TIME OUT

After several fantasy seasons, we realize that winning here, as in real life, depends on seeing what your fellow players can and will do on their own. If you can't set up a play yourself, you'll have to trust that if you pass around the backcourt, then, say, Alonzo Mourning will try to get open for a play. agents rely on you to carry out objectives and support their efforts. Before the game begins, you are introduced to the three main team members by way of dossiers, but other agents may also be involved in the mission.

ETHAN HUNT

Tom Cruise's starring role is your starting role, as well. Ethan is the first choice for every mission.

JOHN CLUTTER

Agent Clutter is an explosives and technical specialist versed in explosives and radio.

JIM PHELPS

This Phelps is no traitor. He directs and coordinates all operations in the field.

toys for the boys

No Mission Impossible operation would be complete without sophisticated equipment. You'll begin each mission with some gear, but you'll have to collect other items along the way. Some devices can be used directly by Ethan, while others must be handed over to technical wizards such as Clutter. The range of items is impressive, too, from explosives to communications devices to cool hi-tech gizmos like the night vision goggles.

The AFS sends secure messages to team members. A blinking light on the item selector indicates an incoming message.

To escape from the submarine base, you'll need these goggles to help you navigate in the dark.

VIEWPOINT

In any 3-D game, the perspectives or camera angles play an important role. Unlike the first-person perspective of GoldenEye 007, MI uses several variations of third-person perspectives. When you're moving quickly, the camera gives a wide angle view so that you can see where to go. If you move slowly, the camera closes in to focus on your immediate vicinity.

When you activate the close-up view for targeting and shooting, your character becomes transparent and a cross-hair appears.

ETHAN IS ALWAYS IN VIEW.

your mission, jim objective witness

After you blow up the power plant, your objective is to regroup with the shooters. It's not over yet.

In the first mission, The Ion Storm's your central objective. It is to blow up the power plant at a submarine base. But in order to accomplish that task, you must meet a number of secondary objectives. In fact, you need to consult the mission objectives list frequently, because new objectives are added as the situation changes. While you're in the field, you can check the physical location of objectives on your radar. Red dots indicate objectives while green dots mark other team members. Communicating with other team members can also be an important way to determine objectives and priorities.

SHOOTERS

In Mission Impossible, you don't have to shoot everyone. In fact, doing so would probably be a bad idea since you'll need to conserve ammo and stay under cover. You'll begin the first mission with a silenced 9mm pistol and one clip of bullets. More weapons can be picked up from fallen enemies, but don't expect to find guns on all of them, or boxes of ammo, either. This isn't Doom. Stealth is better than muscle in most cases. If you have more than one weapon, you can scroll through them on the item selector and see how much ammo you have left.

9MM PISTOL, SILENCED

HI-POWER PISTOL

COVERT ACTIONS

You've arrived at your destination, you know your objectives, and the team is waiting for you to do the impossible. The first objective is to locate the AFS communications device on the docks, then return it to Jim Phelps back at the pier. Using the radar locator on-screen, you'll search for the item while avoiding or dispatching enemy guards. Once you succeed and return the device, you will be linked to Phelps for further instructions.

Collect the AFS and check the objective list. A green message means success. Once you've returned the AFS, you'll be in contact with Phelps.

With the mission clearly in mind, you'll search down the AFS using the radar. The HUD message helps you locate the item.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE

dangerous duty

HAND-TO-HAND

No matter how careful you are, it's won't be able to avoid every fight. When you run out of bullets, you'll have to use your fists.

BEWARE OF TRAPS

Guards patrol the nuclear base while search lights roam the grounds. If you step into the light, you'll trigger an alarm and bring guards racing.

SUPER GUARDS

Not all guards are created equal. Two shots will finish off the greens, but the blue guards in this greenhouse can take six hits apiece.

ADD HAZARDS

Watch out for the traps hiding around the base. If you step into their path, you'll lose your character from the other's view before getting hit.

ACTION

Although objectives may change on every operation, basic actions remain the same. Your ability to run, jump, walk, and crouch never changes. The game also makes use of the analog Control Stick to control your speed. Besides physical movement, you will be asked to use gadgets. The item selector in the lower left part of the screen allows you to scroll through all your gadgets and weapons. You can also access a menu for viewing objectives, the briefing, items and team member profiles.

Ethan must navigate all sorts of terrain, so the ability to jump is vital.

mission complete

Although there were limited missions included in our alpha version of MI, we were impressed by the depth of game play. Like GoldenEye 007, MI goes beyond the realm of 3-D shooters and delivers a much richer experience. The use of the analog stick is a welcome addition to the thrill. As for the graphics, they may not be quite as polished as GoldenEye yet, but they are looking good. At its current rate of development, Ocean hopes to have Mission: Impossible in the stores by May. We hope so, too. After all, anything's possible.

WARIO LAND II™

EVERYONE WANTS A PIECE OF WARIO. IT SEEMS THAT SOMEONE IS ALWAYS OUT TO STEAL HIS FORTUNE OR JUST RUIN HIS DAY. IN NINTENDO'S WARIO LAND II FOR GAME BOY, THE TEMPERAMENTAL HERO IS TERRORIZED, TRANSFORMED, AND TAKEN TO THE CLEANERS. WILL HE FIGHT BACK OR HOWL LIKE A KICKED DOG? THE ANSWER LIES JUST AHEAD.

©1998 Nintendo

bad is good

Bad may be good, at least according to Wario, but good things rarely happen to our bad boy no matter how bad he is. In Wario Land II, Captain Syrup and her annoying friends have run off with Wario's treasure and left his castle in a tight-fisted state. Nintendo Power has mapped out the basic route from Wario's place through 52 improbable stages to Syrup Castle. Along the way, every bad thing you can imagine will happen to Wario. But even if Wario doesn't have a good time, you will.

out of control

CRAZY WARIO

ZOMBIE WARIO

The upside of Wario's insanity is that he can shoot down enemies.

Zombie Wario can fall between stones in the floor. Sunlight cures him.

When Wario meets some special enemies, he completely loses control. But although it may seem like a bad thing, Wario's transformations are usually good. Somewhere in the stage will be a place that he can reach only in the transformed state. Some of Wario's new personalities include Fat Wario, Flat Wario, Fiery Wario, Floating Wario and other forms like those shown at left.

THE GREAT TREASURE HUNT

In the Treasure Game, you have a few seconds to memorize the appearance of an enemy character, then you have to match it to one of the eight figures that briefly appear. You can win back 50 of Wario's treasures.

The star symbol shows the entrance to a Treasure Game.

One noisy morning

TURN OFF THAT ALARM CLOCK!

Wario slept soundly while his castle was burgled, but now the alarm clock is ringing and he can't find it anywhere. Your main mission is to turn off the clock. You should collect Wario's hidden stash of coins, as well. Try busting through all the walls.

The first chapter of Wario's desperate scramble to recover his treasure begins at home in his castle. He must deal with the mess left behind by Captain Syrup's cronies. Some of the monstrous misfits are still hanging around, too.

BAT ATTACK!

One bat drops a lead weight that flattens Wario; the other picks him up and steals coins.

TURN OFF THE GIANT FAUCET

The thieves left the water running in the castle and it's flooded up the lower floors. Now Wario has to take a page from Mario's book and do some plumbing. The first job is to turn off the faucet. He'll have to swim in some areas and float on furniture in others.

The currents are too strong for Wario to swim forward, but he can swim downward to reach these hidden coin chambers.

THE BIG DRIP

How do you turn off the faucet? You can't twist the handle, so the next best thing is to charge into it from the side repeatedly.

LET THE WATER OUT

Conveniently, Wario's Castle has a drain. Unfortunately, it's blocked by a stopper. Your job is to unblock the castle and let the water out. Use the slide-and-roll move down the stairs to reach the stopper.

BUBBLE TROUBLE

Only the big bubbles can carry you up through the current, but if you hit a ledge they'll pop.

GO DOWN TO THE CELLAR

Before leaving the castle in search of the venditor, Wario heads down to the cellar to pick up more of his scattered coin collection. The big danger here comes from above in the form of falling blocks, although in some places being flat is better than being fat.

PUMPING UP

You'll have to gain some thin out before you can make it through the door. A drop of water or a bit of connective Wario's shape.

BATS IN THE BASEMENT

These bats have nothing better to do all day than drop blocks. If you jump on a block, you can jump from the top to reach more coins.

COIN HEAVEN

Leave a stairway of blocks intact so you can hop up to reach the coins at the top of this room.

Plot: Wario won't fall through the narrow hole, but you may want to explore what's hidden below.

DEFEAT THE GIANT SNAKE

She slithers on the head of the giant snake we'll knock her out cold, but one bite will send Wario back to start the fight over. Just stay clear of those fangs.

2 S.S. TEA CUP

It's yo, ho, ho and a bottle of scum for Wario when he takes to sea in pursuit of Captain Syrup. But before Wario drops anchor, he'll have to catch a chicken and walk his way through the mysterious woods. Once aboard the Tea Cup, Wario must stop the ship and defeat a mad gull.

2.1 RETURN THE HEN TO HER NEST

To reach the hen, you'll have to slide and roll through the low passage and use spiked barrels to break the blocks. Once you find her, carry her or follow her back to the nest.

2.2 ESCAPE FROM THE WOODS

Wario battles penguins with immunity bombs, lithe fire-breathing dragons and plenty of obstacles in the woods. Luckily it's a short trip and you'll soon be aboard the S.S. Tea Cup.

2.3 GET IN THE CUP

Getting aboard the good ship Tea Cup isn't as easy as it sounds. You'll have to swim through caves, then hop onto the backs of flying gulls, and finally evade hungry eels.

2.4 DROP THE ANCHOR

Once you reach the bridge room, you'll find the anchor resting on the edge, ready to drop into the sea. Give it a Wario rush and knock it over the side to stop the S.S. Tea Cup.

2.5 DEFEAT BOBO

When Bobo takes a hit on the head, he gets so upset that he causes a strong wind to blow up from below. To avoid being blown out of the stage, just push downward to resist the wind.

Maze Woods

Captain Syrup and her henchmen escape in a balloon, and Wario is forced to follow by hitching a ride with an owl. When you reach the woods, you'll find thickets of thorns, lakes full of nasty fish and lots of creeping creatures.

BAD COINS

Wario loves coins, but avoid the coins stamped with the letter "U." They will carry you away from your course.

GET TO MAZE WOODS

The only way to cross the sea is in the clutches of an owl. Hit the owl and then jump up so it grabs Wario. You can steer the owl, but it's tricky since it never stops and you have to keep correcting your course. The enemy birds won't hurt the owl, but one hit on Wario sends him falling into the water.

DEFEAT THE GIANT SPEAR MAN

You'll be deep in the forest now, so you'll have to use some work-arounds. That includes using the fire dragon to burst through fire blocks and riding on the backs of turtles. When you need to reach a high ledge, jump from on top off an overturned enemy.

HIDDEN HOLES

Watch out for the hidden holes. The groups of coins and gaps between the trees indicate the locations of holes.

Carry the fire dragon to the upper ledge before igniting Wario and breaking through the wall.

NOTHING TO SPEAR

THROUGH THE THORNY MAZE

This area is a test of your owl-piloting skills. One touch of a thorn and Wario will drop to the forest floor and you won't reach the exit. In addition to thorns, you'll encounter bad birds that try to dive-bomb Wario.

ESCAPE FROM THE MAZE WOODS

Ride the turtles, smash the blocks, hop on baddies and collect coins. One new enemy blows Wario up like a balloon. In the final area with the exit door, you need to slide and roll, then jump in ball form to reach the blocks and break through to the door.

DEFEAT THE GIANT BEE

Hop on the giant bee's head then prepare for the wasps that pop out of the two honeycombs. Hit the small bees from the side or top, but don't let them sting Wario's head.

4 in town

The town level has more variety than the rest of the levels put together, but it isn't very hard to find your way through it. In the building areas, keep heading up and look for open windows. In the factory, throw switches to reverse the conveyor belts. And in the end, play ball like you've never played before.

STOP THAT TRAIN!

The key to getting through the train is to reach the roof and explore every hole that drops back into the train.

DOWN IN THE CELLAR

The many Syrup chains in this area may have lottering cakes, but that's just what Wario needs to reach the basement.

ANYONE FOR B-BALL?

Hop on the rabbit, then stand to the right of the basket as shown in the screen shot and shoot. Three hoops win it all.

UP ON THE ROOFTOP!!

Jump from ledge to ledge while avoiding the bottles that come flying out of the windows. Remember to go inside, too.

ESCAPE FROM THE FACTORY

Explore each area of the factory with the switches thrown both ways and you'll find all the hidden secrets.

Syrup castle

The final and largest area takes you into and through Captain Syrup's castle. Wario must deal with mazes, enemies, ghosts and ducks; not to mention the captain himself. You'll need to use all the skills you've mastered up to this point, and more, if you hope to recover the treasure.

GET TO THE CASTLE

To make this cruise by far the extra special, Captain Syrup has put spikes along the route. Keep your head low and watch your jumps. You'll also travel by owl, and you'll have a chance to find some hidden can spots.

5. STORM THE CASTLE

Some new enemies like Pogo Guy show up in the castle to give Wario a warm welcome. Expect lots of jumps and break-throughs. You'll also meet ghosts for the first time. To recover from being Zombie Wario, step into the shafts of light.

When you transform to Tiny Wario, you actually can jump higher. Use this trick to reach all the coins.

As a zombie you can pass through a ones and reach all the coins.

5.3 DEFEAT FOUR DUCKS

Four ducks in four rooms hold the key to progressing further in the castle. Waluigi's mission is to defeat each of the four mighty fowl! A switchroom in the middle of the staircase gives you access to all four rooms. When you defeat the fourth duck, you'll warp automatically to the next stage.

The race is the key here. Carry one up to the top rail and jump off it to get over the obstruction.

DUCK ON A WIRE
You must toggle the duck from above. Drop down through the holes on the duck's snout. Keep doing this until the duck falls off the wire.

5.4 FIND THE HIDDEN DOOR

The only way to find the hidden passages is to smash into walls, throw enemies at blocks, and stomp. In the first area, you'll have to smash through the columns. In the final area, the brick walls contain a maze of passages. The maps on these two pages show all the secret passages after they've been opened. If you see a wall where there's a passage on the map, let it.

REACHING THE HEIGHTS

After storing Pogo Bay, carry him up to the middle ledge, then have him bounce you to the top where you can get the coin.

THE FINAL BATTLE

Captain Syrup hovers overhead in a word-flying contraption while she drops berring beetles on Wario. At the same time, columns of fire shoot up from the floor. Use the beetles to hit Syrup; then, when they become explosive, throw them into the fire.

many roads to go

With this strategic review you should be able to reach the end of Wario Land II, but there are other routes you can take. Some of the special routes pass through just a few stages. You can even go straight from the One Nobby Morning stage to the Invade Wario Castle stage. Future issues of Power will cover the special routes. For now, just have fun being bad.

The treasure map shows the route you took to recover your treasure, but it doesn't show the routes you didn't take. Keep looking.

PUZZLING PICS

Every time you win a piece of the puzzle in the number-identification game, it fills in one piece of a larger picture. You'll have to go to all 52 stages to fill in every piece of the puzzle.

WHAT'S THE BEST WAY TO CRUSH LIZARD KONG?

Lizard Kong is the king of Jungle Land. To defeat this boulder-tossing, chunky monkey, avoid the rocks he throws at you and use your tongue to grab the butterflies lying at your head. As Lizard Kong raises his arms and pounds his fists against his chest, shoot the butterflies. If you hit Lizard Kong, he'll stumble backward. Keep dodging and shooting until you've pushed Lizard Kong into the pit.

The blue butterflies in this stage will hurt you if you jump into them. Grab them with your tongue and shoot them at Lizard Kong.

Shoot the butterflies when Kong pounds his fists against his chest. Keep shooting until he falls backward into the pit.

HOW DO I SQUASH QUEEN ANT?

Queen Ant reigns over all of Ant Land, and if you're not careful, you'll end up as her court jester. The purple monarch will spin around the royal chamber and order several ants to attack you. Maintain your distance from the queen, then shoot your tongue at the post in the center of the room. Swing around the post to trip the queen, then quickly grab the ants with your tongue and shoot them at the Queen Ant before she gets back up.

Move away from the queen and wait for her to continue the battle. As long as you keep some space between you and her royal highness, you should be able to survive long enough to hit her five times and defeat her.

Move away from her highness when she jumps about and orders her warriors to attack.

Shoot your tongue at the post in the center of the room, then swing around and trip the queen.

IS THERE AN EASY WAY TO BLAST BAZEEL?

Yes. First, don't waste time blasting the small turrets—in the desert, just eliminate the ones around Bazeel. There are two ways to attack the giant tank: You can stay above 600 meters and dodge the tank's fire, or you can fly up behind it, very low to the ground, and use your special weapons on the tank's weak rear armor. Either way, if you're fast enough to destroy the tank in daylight, you'll move on to the Shuttle Defense Bonus Stage.

If you stay above 600 meters, you'll be able to dodge most of Bazeel's anti-aircraft guns.

Fly low to the ground and use your special weapon on the tank's weak rear armor.

HOW DO I SINK LEVIATHAN?

Levithan is actually one of two submarine dreadnoughts patrolling the Pacific Ocean. Its sister ship, Krakken, surfaces a few seconds after you sink Leviathan. Before you engage the Leviathan, stay high and destroy the fleet's fighter support. The enemy fighters in this stage are capable of inflicting more damage than surface defenses. Start your attack run from a high altitude over Leviathan, then dive down, targeting the ship's weak spots with your special weapon. After you fire your weapons, quickly pull up to avoid the anti-aircraft fire from the surrounding fleet. You probably won't have any special weapons left for Krakken, so keep repeating your dive bombing attack using your main weapon and take out the helicopters surrounding the ship if you score more than 1,700,000 before you sink Krakken, you'll earn a trip to the Air Landing Bonus Stage.

Krakken will surface after you sink Leviathan. Blast the helicopters before you attack.

I KEEP RUNNING OUT OF TIME IN THE FORTRESS STAGE!

You'll have a scant 900 seconds to demolish the fortress before the enemy activates its Super Weapon. Since you're on a tight timetable, you should take a moment to prioritize your targets before you start the mission. The first thing you should do is locate and destroy the four force field generators. You'll find one in each corner of the mission area. Destroying the force fields allows your wingsmen to attack the fortress defenses. Your second target should be the guns around the fortress, but don't try to eliminate every strong point—the Super Weapon will automatically fire if the enemy's air defense network goes down. Save your special weapon for the third and final target, the main fortress. After you deplete your special weapon, switch to your main weapons and continue attacking the fortress until it's destroyed. If you've completed the Air Landing and Shuttle Defense stages, you'll be able to fly on to the Goliath Defense Bonus Stage.

Destroy the four Fortress force field generators located at the corners of the mission area.

HOW DO I GET TO THE SPACE COURSES AND OPEN T.T.'S DOOR?

You're asking about Future Fun Land, an advanced stage in the game. You'll have to have all four Gold Trophies and beat Wario to get there. If you do, drive up to the trophy sign on the beach. Once you get there, you'll probably want to know what it takes to open the T.T. Time Trial Door. To get inside, you'll need to have all 47 Balloons and the four pieces of the T.T. Amulet. There are no warp or tricks for reaching these areas, so start racing!

Bronze and silver prizes won't get you into Future Fun Land—you need four Gold Trophies.

To get inside T.T.'s Door, you need 47 Balloons and all four pieces of the T.T. Amulet.

WHERE IS THE KEY IN SHERBET ISLAND?

Sherbet Island's key is located on the Crescent Island course. You'll find it in the water a little way past the starting line. From the start, stay to the left when the track splits and drive along the water. After a short distance, the land veers to the right, but you want to continue your heading straight out into the water. Keep the coast on your right and you'll float past a small alcove carved out by the surf. Put on the brakes and look inside the alcove for the key.

Crescent Island's watery course is where you'll need to look to find the Sherbet Island key.

After you start, stay left and follow the water. You'll get your wheels wet on the beach.

Keep going straight, keeping the land on your right and you'll spot this alcove and the key.

WHERE IS THE KEY IN DRAGON FOREST?

Dragon Forest's key is in the Boulder Canyon course. To get the key, you need to ring the bell to raise the drawbridge, then race up the bridge to find the key on a platform. From the starting line, follow the road to the first bridge, then cross it and collect the three Blue Balloons. Turn around and drive back to the bridge and bang the bell with your vehicle. Once the bridge is raised, press the Z Button to use your balloons and shoot toward the bridge deck. If your timing is right, your vehicle will go up the steep ramp and you'll find the key on a slanted platform near the top of the wall.

Before you ring the bell on the drawbridge, drive over and pick up the three Blue Balloons.

You must ring the bell to raise the drawbridge. Gently nudge the bell with your vehicle.

WHAT IS TIME ATTACK MODE?

Sssh! Geez, just blab about it to everyone! Time Attack Mode is a secret game mode not even mentioned in the DKL3 instruction manual. It's a racing game where players can shoot for fast times by running, rolling and pouncing through twelve different stages. To reach Time Attack mode, you'll need to find all the DK Coins and Clocks in the game. Once you have the goods, Time Attack will appear on your game's main menu.

You'll need to get all the DK Coins and Clocks to play DKL3's Time Attack Mode.

HOW DO I FILLET BARBOS IN CAPE CODSWALLOP?

Barbos is the head clam in Barbos Basin, the last stage you'll find in Cape Codswallop. When you begin the battle, Barbos will shoot a lurchin at you. Wait for the lurchin to stop chasing you, then wait for it to open. As the lurchin opens, jab it with your nose to send it careening back at Barbos. This will aggravate the giant clam and he'll shoot a wave of three lurchins out at you. If you can swim directly above Barbos, you'll find a safe spot. Wait for the lurchins to pass, then move out and jab the next lurchin back at Barbos. He'll surrender if you hit him three times.

Wait for the solitary lurchin to slow and open, then bounce it back into Barbos.

You'll find a safe spot directly above Barbos. Hide here when he shoots three lurchins out at you.

1997 NINTENDO POWER AWARDS

Welcome to the 1997 Nintendo Power Award nominations, where you, our readers, tell us what you think were the best and brightest games of 1997. Check each category, mark your choices on your Player's Poll card and send it in. We'll announce the winners in our May issue. If you vote, you'll also be entered into the Player's Poll contest automatically, so you could win big, too!

A BEST GRAPHICS

Textured polygons are becoming the norm rather than the exception, and more and more games are featuring full 3-D environments. Technology doesn't mean a thing, though, if there's no creativity and artistry to back it up. In your opinion, which of these titles represents the best combination of art and science?

1. Diddy Kong Racing
2. FIFA Road to the World Cup '98
3. GoldenEye 007
4. NFL Quarterback Club '98
5. San Francisco Rush
6. Star Fox 64
7. Top Gear Rally
8. Turok: Dinosaur Hunter

B BEST SOUND

What would your games be like without the low rumble of a car's engine, the excited cheers of a sell-out crowd or the sharp crack of enemy gunfire? Pretty boring, actually. Sound effects and music combine with a game's graphics to draw you into the action and create an interactive experience unlike any other.

E BEST CHALLENGE

When it comes to games, there's frustration and then there's frustration. What's the difference? In the first case, you'll give a game "just one more try"—a couple of hundred times. In the second case, the Game Pak ends up being a mighty fine counter for your cocoa. Rest assured that these nominees are frustrating, but only in the best possible way!

Control gives a virtual joystick that's easier to think about what you're doing. The controller becomes an extension of you, and suddenly, you're screaming down a twisting track, soaring through the vastness of space or charging downfield through a pack of defenders—at least, that's what it feels like.

K THE CREATIVE CHAOS AWARD

We love a good explosion as much as the next bunch of crazed action/adventure fans, and these are the scenes of inspired mayhem that made us stand up and take notice in 1997. Now you can tell us which one of these lit our fire.

1. Blowing up the Facility (GoldenEye 007)
2. Destroying Tokyo Tower (AeroFighters Assault)
3. Sasquatch destroying Katina base (Star Fox 64)
4. Crashing your car (San Francisco Rush)
5. Knocking down buildings (Blast Corps)
6. Using the Chronosceptor (Terok)

L THE GOLDEN RUMBLE PAK

If a game is designed and programmed to use the Rumble Pak properly, you'll not only be able to see and hear the action on screen, you'll be able to feel it as well. These are the games that registered big on our Richter scale.

R BEST HERO OR HEROINE

This year's nominees for Best Hero or Heroine include such perennial favorites as Mario and Fox McCloud. We can't wait to see how these video game veterans fare against the likes of Pipsy, Turok and a certain British secret agent.

1. Bomberman (Bomberman 64)
2. Beegerman (Clayfighter 63's)
3. Fox McCloud (Star Fox 64)
4. James Bond/007 (GoldenEye 007)

M COOLEST CODE OR TRICK

Whether you're looking for serious game play help or simply a bit of fun, codes can make a bad game tolerable and make a good game even better. Which type of code or trick do you prefer?

1. The Big Cheat (Turok: Dinosaur Hunter)
2. Helmet Car (Top Gear Rally)
3. Ned the Janitor (Maxey the Dark Age)
4. No Radar (GoldenEye 007)
5. Star Quarterbacks (NFL Quarterback Club '98)
6. Zap the Zippers (Diddy Kong Racing)

Worst Villain

The race for Worst Villain of 1997 also promises to be very close and very interesting. The list of nominees has everything from a mutant cyborg to a two-faced terrorist to an extraterrestrial pig. We won't be taking any bets on this one!

1. Andross (Star Fox 64)
2. The Campaigner (Turok: Dinosaur Hunter)
3. Dr. Klein (ClayFighter 63 1/2)
4. Janus/006 (GoldenEye 007)

The Golden Bandage Award

Okay, admit it. Sometimes you make little noises to go along with the action on screen. And maybe you'll wince and say, "Oooo!" when someone pulls off a good move or attack. And sometimes, well, you just gotta scream, "Aaaahh-ow-oww!" Now THAT was GOOD!"

1. Beogerman's Flaming Part Claytality (ClayFighter 63 1/2)
2. The Executioner's Axe Hook attack (Macra: The Dark Age)
3. The Giant's Choke Slam attack (WCW vs. NWO: Wrld Tour)

More Annoying Than The Spice Girls Award

What could possibly have been more annoying in 1997 than the Spice Girls, you ask? Take a look at the list of features and phrases that made us cringe and you tell us.

1. "Fox, get this guy off me!" (Sloppy, Star Fox 64)
2. "I'm coming in-hot!" (Glenda, AeroFighters Assault)
3. "Oh-ow-ow-ow-ow!" (Toad, Mario Kart 64)
4. "Try something else!" (dispatcher, Blast Corps)

S BEST SUPER NES GAME

Even we were surprised to see the Super NES come back for one more title fight in this year's Nintendo Power Awards. Though the field of competitors was pretty small, we felt it was only right to recognize the best of 1997's 16-bit games. If you haven't taken some of these games for a spin, perhaps you should.

T BEST GAME BOY GAME

The Game Boy continues to amaze everyone with its longevity, thriving far past the time that most video game systems would have ended up in a corner of the closet or used as cannon fodder in backyard war games. Perhaps the continuing sales success of the hardware has something to do with the quality of the software. Though the classic Player's Choice games weren't eligible for nomination, we think you'll like this crop of new titles just fine.

Castlevania Legends™

The Legend continues this time on Game Boy, and now a new Belmont is cracking the whip.

THE LEGEND

The release of Castlevania Legends is quite a milestone, marking the tenth anniversary of the series. While Konami has allowed for advances in graphics and sound over the years, its successful blend of horror and action has remained largely unchanged. The one significant development for Castlevania Legends is having a female in the lead role. It's nice to see that the Belmonts have at least one heroine in their ranks!

Konami presents another creepy sneak inside Dracula's Castle and, as with earlier Castlevania games, the scrolling action is full of ruminating gargoyles and other things that go bump in the night.

The big news is that, this time, you'll play as vampire-killer Sonia Belmont. Armed with the trademark Belmont whip and her considerable wiles, she's out to drop Dracula in his own dungeon.

Besides the whip, you can also gather Soul Weapons after defeating the guardian of each level and upgrade them using special items. You'll have to learn to use your powers well—inside this castle things can quickly go from hot...to worse.

POWER-UPS

Ups

The boys hidden in castles give extra lives, so it's worth the trouble to go out of your way to pick them down. Each level has at least one.

Meat

The first trick is wither, smooch. Each level has times or few pieces, and they're bits of what you're low on. So search and send a pack-man up. Search them out when you need some energy.

Hearts

Not only find Hearts is almost all the castles you come to. Collecting Heart makes enemies work, instead the rest of your Soul Weapons. You can't use them to hold manipulation of risks as you progress, but if you're collected, you'll have to risk again from scratch.

STAGES & SPECIAL ITEMS

Graveyard

Make your way through the forest and graveyard to the castle, grabbing the Axe along the way.

Cathedral

This final level serves up your greatest challenge. You must solve secrets and defeat Dracids.

Lower Castle

Having entered the castle, you must battle through libraries and dining rooms to climb the tower.

Clock Tower

Shiny up chains and over gears to gain the Dagger and access the upper levels.

Top Floor

Battle through elegant halls to reach Alvard, Dracula's son, and be seen to pick up Holy Water.

MODES

You can play Castlevania in one of two modes: Standard or Light. In Standard, you start with a Standard (leather) whip and work your way up, by collecting hearts, to powered-up weapons. In Light mode, you begin with a whip that's already powered-up, so the game is easier. If you want to challenge yourself, opt for Standard mode and drive your upper!

OUTSIDE + THE CASTLE

Brave the Graveyard

You begin outside, hunting through bat-ridden graveyards and tombs to get to the castle. Make sure you get the Axe before you go on, and keep recharging with pieces of Meat. Try crouching to zap means on the ground, and remember that hearts and other items (like Meat) will disappear if you don't grab them in time.

start

This area is infested with bats. They'll fly for the lock of your head, so turn around and whip when they're in range or they and hit them in flight.

This is another white-oncife trap, so don't fire at the dog and accidentally land in a hidden room. If you do get trapped, crouch under a rock where the zombies can't touch you.

A trap! Never walk a white candle or you'll fall down a trap door into a crowd of zombies. If you do fall, crouch and wait a platform until you hit firm or so and get fixed.

a

It's careful! The two pikmin on the level above will fall and attack you. (You can see their feet.) Stand where the second bat is trying to reach three.

Creature Bat

This gargoyle isn't made of stone! Watch his patterns carefully: he stays at top and flaps, sweeps down to attack, then stays low at hand level. When he's low, jump and whip as many times as possible, about three, but don't get hit when he takes off again.

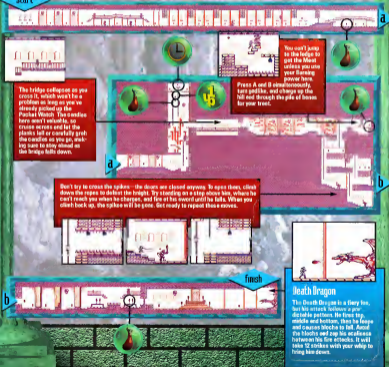

INSIDE THE CASTLE

Explore the Corridors Once you enter the castle, you'll encounter a whole new set of puzzles, the strangest of which are the floating skulls. They move only when you face away, so turn your back to bring them within firing range, turn around to slice them, then leap and whip them down. Be sure to pick up the Pocket Watch before —and leave it behind when you return.

The bridge collapses as you cross it, which won't be a problem as long as you've already picked up the Pocket Watch. The corridor here isn't visible, so cruise across and let the planks fall or carefully grab the corridor as you go, making sure to stay ahead as the bridge falls down.

You can't jump to the ledge to get the Meat unless you use your Flaming power here. Press A and B simultaneously, turn godlike, and charge up the hill and through the pile of bones for your treat.

Don't try to cross the spikes—the doors are closed anyway. To open them, climb down the ropes to defeat the knight. Try standing on a step above him, where he can't reach you when he charges, and fire at his sword until he falls. When you climb back up, the spikes will be gone. Get ready to repeat these moves.

Death Dragon

The Death Dragon is a fiery foe, but his attack follows a predictable pattern. He fires top, middle and bottom, then he leaps and causes blocks to fall. Avoid the blocks and zap his eyes between his fire attacks. It will take 12 strikes with your whip to bring him down.

THE CLOCK TOWER

Go Up to Get Out

Level Three takes you inside Dracula's forbidding Clock Tower, where you'll have to climb chains and pendulums to reach the top. You'll want to study the map, because you don't want to get caught climbing towards a dead end—if you have to retrace your steps, you'll have to repeat your battles with all the monsters you fought before. Plan your route, move quickly and carefully, and clear those bats from the belly.

Grim Reaper

The Grim Reaper throws small, sharp scythes from the large scythe he holds. It's easy to hit him—just leap and whip when he's settled on one side—but it's just as important to hit the flying scythes, which will bounce around and into you. Whip them when they're bouncing in the corners.

Another trap! You should avoid this area entirely, since there are no vulnerable bodies in candles, but if you're in a bind, get in the censer, break, and whip at the various enemies coming your way. Despite their not-they're not—these undead ghosts are packing firepower. Be sure to climb the chains to grab the Meat and the Dagger in the area to the right.

There's a smaller dragon to defeat in this room, but just fall down and crush. Shoot him when he's pecking, then avoid the fireballs he fires (or just whip them away). Don't let him pace over you—this Boss is heavy!

It gets intense here. If you don't destroy the enemies as they appear, they'll follow you and, eventually, surround you. Think ahead: the killer boss Sawa tea. Stay at the ready and whip the monster, early or not.

start

Alucard

Sorica has long known Alucard, Dracula's son, but that makes her no easier to defeat. Save your flame power to use here. Jump the fireballs he throws and avoid his dash lunge. Crouch to avoid his sword, and catch him when he's not a hit. It's also possible to trap him against the left wall.

Finish

Into the High Castle

Sorica's next challenge brings her face-to-face with the son of Dracula. Before you meet him, though, you'll have to destroy the worms that crawl under the floor. Wait for them to emerge next to you, then whip them. You'll also have to pluck the fire-shooting flowers by jumping and striking.

A warning about spikes: they're deadly. They cause more damage than enemy attacks, and once you're on them, it's hard to get off. It's better to take a hit from a bat than to lose a life to a spike.

At this crossroads, make sure that you go up and get the Holy Water before you head toward Alucard's chamber. Be prepared for hot attacks when you go back down.

Again, beware of the white candles. Be very careful in these rooms, because hitting a single white candle could set you back. The last candle holds a piece of Meat, but you don't want to tip a white candle when you whip it. Wait until you're standing next to the last one to snuff.

It's tempting to grab that rope and sail over the spikes, but onto the two heights on the other side. Try waiting on your ledge, firing from a crouch until they leave, then taking that rope over.

You'll meet Madam midway through the level. She skitters across the floor on snaky legs and jabs with a sword, but you can defeat her if you hit down to the floor, crouch in the corner, and keep attacking as she moves.

Start

THE CATHEDRAL

Dracula's Secret Passage

Dracula's Cathedral is filled with mysteries of the ages. The large empty room on this level is, at first, puzzling. You'll have to fall into the room from above in order to trip a switch that opens a secret passage. Although you can finish this level without even taking the passage, if you pass it by, you'll miss out on a hidden stage and the Cross.

start

Although the short strobolites in this room pose no threat, the longer ones will get your head if you jump late there. You'll have to find a way to continue without hitting the ceiling. Try standing on the third step, pulling the Control Stick to the right, then jumping.

When you enter the room below, it will appear to be empty. You'll have to fall from the left platform in the room above to make things happen. Control your fall as you land on the platform, shooting the Saenger candle along the way. The first candle holds a 1-up, the one on the platform opens a secret passage.

Make way through the level, you'll meet the Jumping Demon. He'll try to stomp you out like a cockroach, so enter the room with full energy and a ready whip. Go to the right side of the room and stand on the ledge next to the exit. Face to the left and start striking with your whip as quickly as you can. You'll have to land 12 blows in order to ground the floor.

If you don't fall through the floor into the secret passage, you can continue to the right and enter the lower map on this page. If you do go through the secret passage, you'll pass through the top map before ending up in the area shown in the last map section here.

As soon as you enter and walk to the middle of this room, you'll be frozen in your tracks. When the fireball-pitching enemies surround you, stay low. Crouch and turn left and right to attack. You'll have to defeat ten before you'll be able to move on.

Dracula

You'll have to fight Dracula in two forms before he'll give up the ghost. At first, the crowd vampire will support around the room flying. In death, Latria he takes a great form and needs only his gargantuan-like face flying around, shooting fireballs. This will be a difficult battle, and it will be all the more challenging without a Power Two Whip. Get ready to smack the whip—and cross your vampire-slaying fingers.

Here's your last chance at Meat, so crawl under the flower before shooting the candle; otherwise, you'll lose it.

DRAC IS BACK

Followers of the Belmont clan will be glad to see the famed vampire hunter back in this new adventure. The game play is classic Castlevania, but with a new star, Simon Belmont, it should hold fans of the legendary series in great Dracula—II fits the New Line the year or early in '91.

BUST-A-MOVE

ARCADE 2[™] EDITION

© 1997 Acclaim Corporation. All Rights Reserved.
Acclaim Entertainment, Inc. 1997

Game Boy fans should bubble over with joy with the release of Acclaim's Bust-A-Move 2, a one-player puzzle Pak that proves to be powerful fun. With its fast pace and many modes of play, it's a game that you shouldn't miss!

Burst Your Bubbles

In case you aren't already a fan of Bust-A-Move on the Super NES, here's a brief description of the fun you're in for on the Game Boy: You begin with a screen filled with various bubbles that you'll try to clear by firing matching bubbles from below. If you can connect three or more identical bubbles, they'll burst and disappear from the playing field. Sounds simple, right? Right! You'll be simply overrun with bubbles if you don't devise some clever strategies.

Blowing Bubbles

While this game gives you three great modes of play, they all have one goal in common: To bust bubbles as quickly as you can! Most importantly, try to fire your bubbles so they land next to any identical ones already on the screen. You'll often have to angle your shot, so they bounce off the wall into the right spot. If you're looking for a monumental wow, try bouncing your bubbles off the walls and hitting any pair at the top of the screen. This will set off a chain reaction, breaking all the bubbles with a single shot.

Puzzle Game

The point of the Puzzle mode is to pick a path across a grid of letters, with each letter representing five to ten rounds of bubble-busting play. No one path is easier than another, but the different levels become more difficult as you move up. The game will come to an end during any round if you get overrun with bubbles, but you can use up to nine credits to keep the game going. Just be sure that you go to the Options screen and pick the maximum number of credits before beginning the game!

Vs. Computer

In this mode you're trying to clear an island by besting computer-controlled critters at bubble busting in 11 separate competitions. The real key to beating the computer is to break bubbles as quickly as possible; every bubble you burst will be added to the computer's field of play, and vice-versa, so even small chains of bubbles can help you bury your opponent.

Time Attack

The Time Attack goal is to clear screens by shooting down as many bubbles as you can. If you look closely for patterns in the arrangement of bubbles, you should be able to clear the screen with just a few shots. And if you can pull off a round quickly enough, you'll be rewarded with a big bonus! There are 50 screens in all, but you'll get a password after each round so you can take breaks.

ENDGAME

If you're a real pro, then you've seen your share of game finales. Can you identify what games these end scenes are from? (If you don't want us to ruin the ending, you'd better just skip this part. Otherwise, wait until next month when we'll reveal the answers.)

1080° SNOWBOARDING

- Nintendo 64 Megabyte
- 1 or 2 players simultaneous play
- Controller and Transfer Pak compatible
- 4 courses, 5 boards, 6 maps

Extreme fun on the extreme machine.

Graphics From blizzards to dazzling sunlight, 1080° Snowboarding creates a mountain environment so real that you could freeze your tail off. The character animation looks cool, too. Some of the effects, such as wake powder blowing back at the screen, are almost enough to make you feel as if you're on the slopes.

Play control Probably the most impressive part of the game is the realistic play control. Like Wave Race 64, 1080° Snowboarding recreates the feeling of its sport to an amazing degree. The start control system is also similar to the one in Wave Race 64.

Game design 1080° is pretty much a racing game with a stunt mode thrown in. The courses are varied enough to keep players hunting for the perfect line down the mountain or shortcuts.

Satisfaction Whether you like freeriding or going for That Air, you're going to have fun 'in 1080'. We would have liked more courses and a greater variety of runs, but, of course, we're never satisfied.

Physics The sound effects of boards sliding, scraping and swooshing over the course add a lot to the reality. A Get X sound track sets the tone.

Comments Scott: This is the only way I'll ever feel a 720° Air without breaking my back. Henry: The snowboard feeling is excellent, and the tricks add depth. Don: Graphics. This game is sick, dude!

GRAPHICS

The close-up camera angles look great, but they don't provide a good playing perspective. For that, you must use the higher camera positions. Unfortunately, you lose detail while gaining a wide field of view. All the graphics look better than the PSX version.

PLAY CONTROL Response times for passing, shooting, checking and other moves are good, but the actions don't feel particularly realistic. Fighting is awkward.

COMMENTS NHL Breakaway has it all—exhibitions, four-player action, arcade mode, seasons, playoffs, Rumble Pak compatibility—even international teams. The options for choosing such things as offensive strategies and manual line switching are great for hockey fans.

COMMENTS This game provides a very solid simulation experience and several options that are superior to the options in the Getzky games. The action on the ice, although more realistic in some ways, may not have quite the electricity of Getzky, with its emphasis on fast, arcade action and high scoring.

SOUND The limited use of the announcer doesn't add much, but the sound effects are good if you crank the volume.

COMMENTS Scott: Hiring coaches and sending players to the hospital? It's almost a hockey RPG. Henry: Tons of features.

A monster PC hit explodes on the N64 scene.

COMMENTS Good environments, ugly monsters. That about sums it up. The use of 3-D monsters was one of the big innovations when the PC version of Quake came out. Things have come along way since then, but you wouldn't know it from looking at the monsters in Quake 64. The environments are another story, especially the play of light and shadow. It really sets the mood.

PLAY CONTROL

Quick movement and the ability to jump make for a more varied experience than most 3-D shooters offer. You can use cross-hairs and even choose a reverse Control Stick option.

GAME DESIGN

The N64 version of Quake is fairly faithful to the PC game. This is a 3-D shooter with tons of guns and monsters running amok. The multiplayer option gives players a sense of PC network Death Matches, although on a limited scale.

SATISFACTION The one-player game is intense and challenging with some cool stages. The multiplayer option was somewhat disappointing.

SOUND Although the original sound track has been changed, the new N64 soundtrack of menacing mood music is perfectly suited to the game.

COMMENTS Henry: Between the darkness and low game rate, I need some aspirin. Paul: If you haven't gotten sick of Doom and Heron, this is worth a look. Dan: The multiplayer mode is limited, but fun.

WARIO LAND II

- Nintendo 64 Megabits

Wario's new adventure goes where no game has gone before.

GRAPHICS Some of the best graphics ever for a Game Boy title give Wario Land II richness and variety. The various special forms that Wario takes on work on several levels. The special forms are comic and they can be a strategic clue to getting through a stage. Nintendo made good use of the Super Game Boy by giving WL II good color palettes and a fun border.

PLAY CONTROL Control is top notch, but as Wario changes form, the controls can change, as well.

GAME DESIGN The "no-die" design means you never have to start over at the beginning of the game. The use of special forms adds variety and puzzle-solving to the mix. Stages are laid out to maximize variety and interest.

PLAY VALUE In the tradition of previous Mario and Wario games, it's fun, funny and challenging. What more is there?

MUSIC The music is slightly twisted, comical and perfectly suited to the likes of Wario. Although discordant, it works.

TECHNIQUE Scott: Some of the techniques for fighting bosses are very creative, and the puzzles are always mind-bending. Terry: The different routes to the game increase the replay value. Marty: It's a Mario game. Paul: If you like side-scrollers, you've nothing to lose.

CASTLEVANIA LEGENDS

Transylvanian terror has never been better.

GRAPHICS Konami did an excellent job of recreating the classic Castlevania look one more time. The SGB enhanced border is a nice castle wall. Castlevania veterans will recognize many enemies they've met before, but there are surprises, as well.

PLAY CONTROL Whipping, jumping and throwing the occasional Soul Weapon are all activities you expect from Castlevania. Don't expect much more. Jumping provides the most excitement, since you can't miss by so much as a pixel without tumbling to your doom.

GAME DESIGN

Something new did work its way into the design of Legends, and it's a great addition. The Light Mode equips your female vampire hunter with a chain whip and fireballs right from the start, and you never lose it. After that, expect five levels filled with ghosts, bosses, sub-bosses and traps.

SATISFACTION Konami knows this series inside and out, and in Castlevania Legends, it pushes all the right buttons. With the new Light Mode, anybody should be able to reach the end. Even so, you'll have many hours of bat-slapping fun.

SOUND Most of the stage themes have the right dark edge to them and none of it is annoying.

TECHNIQUE Scott: It's like an old friend you haven't seen for ages. Stronj: Too easy!

Bust your brain with this puzzler from Acclaim.

GRAPHICS Although the graphics are fairly simple, Bust-A-Move 2 looks good and, what's more important, you can aim shots with precision. In some matches, you'll get an aiming cursor that shows how a marble bounces off the wall.

PLAY CONTROL In Bust-A-Move 2, the most critical part of the game is being able to aim the shooter/arrow with precision. In the Puzzle or Time Attack modes, with their wider windows on the action, that's easy in the Vs. Computer mode's narrower window, aiming can be tricky.

GAME DESIGN BAM 2 includes everything you would expect except for a two-player option. The Puzzle mode and Vs. Computer match provide good variety, but the Time Attack mode seems too similar to the Puzzle game.

SOURCES IGN Probe created this Taro-licensed game for Acclaim and it lost nothing in the migration. As a Super NES game, and an arcade title, BAM was totally captivating. It still is on Game Boy. Puzzle fans should love it.

SOUND Fairly simple music and sound effects are well-suited to the game but not memorable.

COMMENTS Terry: Must... stop... playing. Can't... reach... power switch. Almost I'm sorry, but after playing this game, I felt as if I needed to "Bust Out Here." Paul: It's tough to tell the little pieces apart.

N64 CAPTURES VIDEO GAMES SALES LEAD IN NORTH AMERICA

At the end of 1997, Acclaim celebrated a return to the black with a 70% increase in income, due in major part to excellent holiday sales of Turok, NFL QB Club and Extreme-G. That's just one success story in many for the N64—the system that has become the home of the mega hits. According to the industry TRS reports based on software sales at major retailers, the year's top five titles were all from Nintendo: Mario Kart 64, Star Fox 64, Super Mario 64, DK64, and GoldenEye 007. Other N64 games to make the top 20 included Turok: Dinosaur Hunter, Star Wars: Shadows of the Empire, Wave Race 64, Cruis'n USA, NFL Quarterback Club '98 and Madden 64.

Peter Main, Nintendo of America's senior vice president of marketing, summed it up in a recent speech, "In a business where traditionally only one of every 200 or 300 game releases ever achieves million seller status, nine Nintendo 64 games sold in excess of a million in 1997 alone." And that number of million unit titles could soon be ten with WCW Vs. NWO: World Tour already passing the 800,000 mark. Industry forecasters suggest that even more games will be sold this year. With titles like Zelda 64, Banjo-Kazooie, Turok 2, F-Zero X, and NBA Courtside, plus more titles from Nintendo, Rare, Acclaim, Konami and Midway ready to explode on the scene, 1998 sales could shatter all records.

ACCLAIM ALL-STARS GUNNING FOR GRIFFEY

Aclaim's All-Star Baseball '98 in development at Iguana Entertainment may set a new standard for realistic sports simulations. Recently, Acclaim stopped by our Park Watch offices to show off a demo of the game. The crispness of the hires characters was reminiscent of NFL QB Club, which was also a creation of Iguana Entertainment. But whereas QB Club used the Turk engine for animation, All-Star Baseball has a newly designed sports engine that will undoubtedly power many of Acclaim's future sports titles.

Lighting, especially in outdoors night games like the one depicted in this shot at Wrigley Field, shows the attention to lifelike detail given by Iguana.

Major league animation

The lifelike animation has to be seen to be believed, much like the televised look of FIFA: Road to the World Cup '98. But this is baseball with its huge range of motions—diving, sliding, swinging bats, throwing pitches, spitting, scratching and thumping dirt off of spikes with the end of the bat. And all of these motions look amazingly real. With 50,000 frames of animation for 1,000 different motions, it should look good. That includes 100 individual batting stances.

Focus of top MLB stars will appear on their characters in the game.

The arcade pitcher control will let you move the ball during the pitch. Simulation control will let you choose one of the pitcher's actual pitches.

Let's play ball!

This game is more than just an all-star for its graphics. Iguana is including some very cool options, such as one- to four-player simultaneous play modes, minor league team rosters from which you can "call up" top prospects, create-a-player options, multiple-career perspectives, spring training mode, an arcade pitching option and a sim pitching option, trades, realistic stadiums, and more. Although Acclaim plans to release the title in April, we think a May or even June release may be a little more realistic. The big question is how All-Star Baseball '98 will stack up to Nintendo's MLB Featuring Ken Griffey Jr. Unfortunately, we can't answer that until we play a finished version of All-Star. We can say that Junior may not have the only winning ticket in town.

RACIN' WITH RECKIN' BALLS

So what in the world is vertical racing? Acclam's answer is a one- to four-player game tentatively called Reckin' Balls in development at Iguana Entertainment. "It's sort of like Mario Kart 64 with springs," explains Mike Myers of Acclam. The balls in Reckin' Balls are animated characters with funny faces that must bounce, roll and grapple their way to the top of multilevel towers. The towers are the race tracks.

A race to the top

The game plays out with the balls racing

along the tracks until they are directly below an upper level track. Then they bounce or pull themselves up to that level. Enemies may get in the way, and balls can pick up items to use against their opponents. They must also contend with traps and tricky devices that blast the balls up to higher levels. Once they reach the top of the tower, the balls are carried back to the bottom where they start it all over again for another two laps. With 100 levels, eight characters, and Rumble Pak compatibility, Acclam plans on packing Reckin' Balls into a 128 megabit Game Pak and having it out the door by this May.

IS BIO FREAKS TOO BLOODY?

When is too much too much? That question may be on some people's minds when they see Bio Freaks from Midway. The developers at Saffire have gone to great lengths to make the game look cool. The arenas have a menacing air, the range from a Lara Croft look-alike to a hulking man-machine monster. All of them are armed with heavy-duty weapons, lots of flashy fighting moves and jet packs, so they can take the fight to a vertical dimension.

Wipe off that screen

But what a lot of people will focus on is the spattered blood that seems to hit the inside of the television screen, or the fact that characters can lose an arm and keep on fighting and spurring. In defense of Midway, the excesses in Bio Freaks came about after focus groups of games called for more gore. They got it, but Midway plans to give players options to turn off the fountain. Even cleaned up, Bio Freaks will have a lot to offer sadists. Players will have to avoid arena hazards such as giant rollers or a moat of bubbling acid. The eight main fighting characters and two bosses feature 25 to 30 moves apiece and two types of shielding. Even if you object to graphic violence, the variety of Bio Freaks will be hard to resist.

TUROK 2

First Screens

PAK WATCH

Pak Watch is proud to present the first-ever published screen shots of Turok 2 for the N64. Acclaim provided these screen shots exclusively for our readers, knowing full well that Nintendo Power readers are the biggest Turok fans in the known universe. The images are of one city in the upcoming sequel, and they demonstrate the ultra-realistic level of detail that the game will feature. Enjoy the great shots.

The Raptors, and all of the inhabitants of Turok 2, have been smoothed to eliminate the sharp polygon edges seen in the original.

Each city and area in Turok 2 will have its own architectural style. This Moorish temple isn't the work of the lumbering Pur-IL.

WHAT'S AN OCARINA?

The tentative sub-title for Zelda 64 is Ocarina of Time. An Ocarina, for those of you into musical minutia, is a small, roundish type of flute. In the case of Zelda 64, the Ocarina is a magical instrument, as well. The price of getting the Ocarina is three spiritual stones that Link must find along the way. In other Zelda 64-related news, it has been decided that the Game Pak itself will be gold just like the first NES Legend of Zelda. Although an official date hasn't been announced, Nintendo chairman Howard Lincoln says it will definitely be out some time in the second half of 1998. In the meantime, we have more exclusive shots from EAD.

Link takes away from Arms, then spins and strikes the monster hard. It's the final blow for this armored foe.

The town is one of the most realistic spaces ever created for a video game. Link has complete freedom of motion here.

Even a powerful shot isn't enough to defeat strong enemies like Arms. You need a plan of attack.

Link needs to be able to do just about anything, from throwing a hammer to reading road signs to Mt. Goron. The statue in the middle will come alive.

Remember the Tektites from the original Zelda? Well, they're back, and hopping mad.

Pak Peek

What's breaking in the world of games.

Everything but a virtual airbag

Interact's V3 Racing Wheel controller is well on its way to becoming the first officially licensed steering wheel and pedal combo for the N64. When the most recent version of the V3 arrived at NDA for testing, we snagged the unit for a test drive on just about every racer currently released for the N64. The wheel itself plugs into the first controller slot on the N64, then the pedal unit with accelerator and brake pedals plugs into the wheel console. To keep the wheel in place, the unit has a leg brace feature that sits under the driver's thighs. You can adjust height and angle for comfort and there's even a programming feature. The analog wheel has 300 degrees of rotation and all the buttons that you'd find on a regular N64 controller. It's self-centering, and it has a slot for a Controller Pak. Once we got out on the road, we discovered that not all racers handled the same with a wheel. Our exacting but unscientific tests revealed that San Francisco Rush, Automobili Lamborghini, MRC, F-1 Pole Position and DKR all handled pretty well with the V3.

Rush was particularly cool although we missed the Rumble Pak. On Mario Kart 64, performing power slides was difficult. Top Gear Rally also proved to be twitchy with the V3. Interact has announced a suggested retail price of $69.99 for the unit, which they hope to release sometime in the next several months. If nothing else, the V3 will certainly bring new life to all your old racers.

More FIFA?

This May, expect a new version of FIFA for the N64. Entitled FIFA: World Cup '98, the new game should be as stunning as FIFA: Road to the World Cup '98 and include small improvements. The big difference is that you won't be on the road any more. Further down a different road, EA Sports plans on publishing NBA Live '99 sometime this year. We don't expect it until fall, but EA has surprised us before. The biggest surprise from Electronic Arts, however, was an announcement that THQ will sub-license and publish two EA titles for the N64. Both games, Road Rash and Nuclear Strike, are scheduled for release next year.

No rest for Konami

The latest news is that a Game Boy version of International Super Star Soccer will be coming out this summer along with a second N64 version of the excellent soccer game. In Japan, Konami has been putting together classic collections of Game Boy titles, and the U.S. subsidiary is considering doing the same thing in North America. The Nagaya KCE division of Konami is said to be a hotbed of Game Boy development, so don't be surprised to hear about more titles due for release later in the year.

Bowled over by Milo

Milo's Bowl-o-Rama from Crave Entertainment is still a long way from completion, but Crave recently sent us an early, playable demo to give us a sense of what the game is like. Graphically, it was pretty wild. Milo and his bowling buddies look like they've been away from earth for awhile. The idea is to create a cartoonish, 3-D, out-of-this-world look to the game. The controls at this stage mimic the actual steps you take in bowling, using the Control Stick to take steps and release the ball. We didn't see any of the miniature golf type alleys, which will be one of the unique points of the game. Player One is developing the game for Crave, and the plans are to release it in the fall of '98.

There's always more on the N64

More publishers are announcing more new N64 games every month as the system continues to pick up momentum. Hudson Soft in Japan has completed the second Bomberman adventure for the N64. Bomberman's new game is more of a Manosque action romp than the puzzle-filled first title. Kemco revealed that the two still-unnamed titles it is working on will be shown at E3. One game is an RPG based on a previously released Kemco game. The second title is an action game with lots of puzzle elements. And Konami told Pak Witch to expect a new NBA title, a hockey title, an RPG tentatively called Dear Blue, a new fighting game, and a game that has something to do with graffiti. Next month, we expect some even bigger announcements. Stay tuned.

A Rare move

In a move sure to make gamers around the world as happy as honey bears, Rare and Nintendo are now planning to release Banjo-Kazooie in June rather than on the previously announced July date. The recent versions of this

N64 action adventure feature graphics that are almost too beautiful to belong to a video game. The animation, the backgrounds, the special effects and the interaction with colorful characters make B-K look more like an animated movie—except that it looks better than any animated movie we've ever seen. Disney could take lessons from the programmers and artists at Rare. But even more significant is the added depth of play in Banjo-Kazooie. There is so much to find, so many puzzles to solve, and so many baddies to bonk that players may never see it all. The exclusive shots shown here are just a taste of what's to come. By June, everyone will be singing the praises of Banjo-Kazooie.
